

COOK GETS SKIPPER 'ROARING DRUNK'

13 East Germans Flee in Stolen River Boat

CP From AP-Reuters

BERLIN — Bringing a baby with them; 13 young East Germans—six of them crew members—seized a 386-ton river excursion boat after getting the captain and engineer "roaring drunk" and escaped to freedom early today under a hail of machine-gun bullets.

The refugees told police the captain and engineer, both "old Communists," were locked by the six crew members in a cabin after they became heavily intoxicated during a party that was part of a well-laid plan.

Two of the crew then steered boats, five women and one man got the two-decker boat moving.

East German police, firing from a watch tower, a pier, a bridge and a patrol boat, pumped more than 200 bullets into the fleeing vessel. Nobody was hurt.

West Berlin police fired 10 shots back at the East Germans to check their fire. The boat, the Friedrich Wolf, was riddled and there were bullet marks on buildings on the West Berlin shore.

They sailed one of the excursion boats down the Spree, but at the moment they should have turned into the canal, their passage was blocked by a passing barge. So they had to turn around and go back to East Berlin.

The presence of a white excursion boat on the Spree would not excite the Vopos as long as it stayed well away from the

RED HOT PRICE ISSUE

Dollar Duel Waged By Dief, Pearson

Statement Surprises

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times-Ottawa-Bureau

QUEBEC CITY—Prime Minister Diefenbaker had been making and receiving mysterious long distance telephone calls Thursday morning before, suddenly, at a luncheon speech he hinted at taking action against those who are using dollar devaluation as a reason for price increases.

It is understood the calls related to the increases in prices of bread and gasoline in Western Canada.

This has caused the Conservative party concern because Liberal leader Pearson has been forecasting the cost of living would be forced up by the government's devaluation plan.

NO ONE NAMED

Mr. Diefenbaker did not name the "greedy" people who pretend that because of the dollar policy they must raise prices.

Nor did he specify what action might be taken when he interjected the remarks into his speech at Magog, a textile town of 8,000.

"I simply say to those who are trying to take advantage of this situation by boosting their prices that there will be action taken of a definite nature in order to prevent that kind of thing happening."

NOTICE SERVED

"At the moment, my colleagues and I are considering this problem. I don't want any group or corporation in this country, no matter how powerful they may be, to take advantage of this situation."

"I serve notice here and now that in the next few days, if this kind of thing is going on, there will be action taken as effective as it will be drastic," he declared.

Mr. Diefenbaker's threat of action was strikingly similar to the declaration of war by President Kennedy against the steel manufacturers in the United States who had sought an increase in the price of steel. The president immediately announced there would be a thorough inquiry by the federal government at Washington. The steel makers backed down and withdrew their price increases.

NOTHING DEFINITE

The prime minister made no effort at his Magog meeting nor later at his Quebec City meeting to spell out just what action he would take.

It was possible but unlikely that he might take action through controls. He has already in this campaign hit at Quebec Liberal candidate Maurice Lamontagne for being an economist whom he claimed favored controls. That, the prime minister has scoffed, is a form of socialism.

COMBINE PROBER ASKED ABOUT JUMP IN PRICES

OTTAWA (CP)—D. H. W. Henry, in charge of combines investigations in Canada, said today that Justice Minister Fulton has been discussing with him the question of recent price rises in the light of the Combines Investigation Act.

The minister, now campaigning in British Columbia, held several conversations with him by telephone Thursday in which the possible application of the Combines Investigation Act was discussed.

The conversations involved the rise in prices of several products during recent weeks which had been attributed by some persons to the devaluation of the Canadian dollar to 92½ cents in terms of United States currency.

IMPERIAL HOLDS LINE

Rollback Seen On Gas Boost

In a surprise announcement Thursday afternoon, Imperial Oil Ltd. announced that it would not follow the path taken earlier this week by three oil companies in boosting gasoline prices.

Despite the fact that the Imperial announcement cut the ground from under them, British American Oil Co., Texaco Canada Ltd. and Royalite Oil Co. had no further word on their price increases of seven-tenths of a cent per gallon which were still in effect this morning.

However, it is generally conceded that competitive pressures normally would force all prices back down to the level set by Imperial.

In a statement issued Thursday afternoon, Canada's largest oil company said:

"Imperial Oil has no present intention of making an increase in the price of gasoline through its service stations."

FLUCTUATIONS

Some price fluctuations could be expected in price war areas, the company said.

In addition, there will be some price increases to industrial and government customers who buy in large quantities at reduced prices.

The increases here will be about 3 cents a gallon while in Ontario the increase will be about 8 cents.

Imperial, which triggered the gasoline price increases by posting higher prices for crude oil in western Canada oil fields after devaluation of the Canadian dollar early last month, said competition did not allow for general retail product price increases.

CHARGE REPEATED

On Thursday he never failed to mention devaluation at least once at each of the 13 places he visited, from Sarnia to Windsor, in a busy day of campaigning.

His major effort, however, was in Windsor, where a capacity audience of more than 1,700 cheered Mr. Pearson and Liberal frontbencher Paul Martin.

The Liberal leader repeated his claim that the government exchange fund had needed "some mysterious outside support" to keep the dollar up to its devalued level of 92½ cents.

He said the government had acted in a panic—"a political panic"—on May 3 when it was ...the Liberal leader said, "Is bread a luxury? Are thousands and thousands of kinds of equipment, whose costs enter into the price of manufacturing Canadian products?"

The prime minister says it was just a little bookkeeping," scoffed Mr. Pearson. "Some bookkeeping."

Then, he said, government spokesmen tried to deny "the plain fact that their own statistics revealed last week, statistics which showed that even since devaluation we've been dependent on some mysterious outside support to keep the exchange fund stable."

"The government doesn't deny this," said Mr. Pearson, "though they seem unclear as to the source of the outside support."

The prime minister denied the suggestion made by Mr. Pearson earlier this week that central banks of foreign countries had advanced help to the fund. (Wednesday, Mr. Pearson accepted this denial but still claimed there had been some outside support.)

STORIES DIFFER

The government was further off base, Mr. Pearson said, in its comments on price increases that might result from devaluation. Finance Minister Fleming said — it wouldn't have any ill effect, that prices wouldn't get appreciably higher.

But then Trade Minister George Hees had a different story. He said price increases wouldn't matter to ordinary men and women because they'd just be increases on luxuries. Mr. Pearson said,

"The Tories seem to have a peculiar idea of what are luxuries for the Canadian people."

JOEY

Smallwood had prevented Mr. Fleming from speaking.

National officials of the Rotary Club could not be reached for comment.

At a rally after the luncheon, the finance minister himself said the Canadian Bill of Rights does not mean freedom of speech only with the "licence and permission" of Mr. Smallwood.

Mr. Fleming was in St. John's on a two-day political visit. He had been invited to address the Rotary Club.

A few minutes after the luncheon got under way word came from the premier that he wished to see club officials in a nearby room. They hurried out while Fr. Fleming sat silent at the head table.

Mr. MacDonald returned to say that the premier regarded Mr. Fleming's proposed speech as political and he'd better not make it.

Mr. Fleming said at a press conference later that he had offered to stand up and make the withdrawal of the club's invitation to speak himself but that Mr. Smallwood had said that if he even got to his feet, the government's dinner would be cancelled.

PAY NO ATTENTION: The colorful premier, to address the Rotary Club convention here June 13, also had his say later. The gist of it was: "Pay no attention to Mr. Fleming down here trying to grab a few votes. He's on the way out."

The Canadian dollar, pegged May 3 at 92.5 cents in relation to the U.S. dollar, is the hottest political issue in Canada, the premier said, and the invitation to Mr. Fleming who had done the pegging, to discuss it made the Rotary Club a partisan body.

Mr. Fleming had the last word of the day. At an evening political rally, he said:

"You are going to have a visit from Mr. Castro up here trying to learn something about the tactics of a dictator."

U.S. Jet Shatters World Flight Mark

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (UPI)—A Strategic Air Command B-52H Stratofortress jet completed an 11,400-mile "closed circuit" flight without refueling Thursday to establish two world distance records.

The huge eight-jet bomber spent 22 hours and 38 minutes criss-crossing the North American continent before touching down here.

It travelled farther than any other aircraft without refueling for a world distance record over a circuitous route.

Competition from Imperial stations, they conceded, would force them to lower their prices. And if they didn't get relief from a cutback on wholesale prices soon, they would be in a badly squeezed profit position.

A twist and then!

BLACK AND ROSEI Didn't Mean To
—IT Just Slipped

ROME (AP) — Bosomy Jayne Mansfield twisted down to her lace brassiere — no striptease, just an accident, she said — in a night of Roman partying that ended early today.

"Striptease by La Mansfield," headlined Rome's Il Messaggero.

"Not true," said Jayne, "it was no striptease. I just happened to be wearing a very loose fitting dress. Occasionally it came apart."

Jayne wore a low-cut polka dot cocktail dress Thursday night as she and her husband, Mickey Hargitay, first went to a movie studio party, then to a Rome night club.

At both places the blonde actress, here making a movie called Panic Button — created a small panic.

She twisted. And as she twisted, her dress slipped off her shoulders leaving only a black and rose lace bra above the waist.

It happened at both the party and the night club.

"I tried to hold my dress together," Jayne said. "I guess twisting wasn't the best thing to do in that dress."

section that runs alongside West Berlin.

The ship's cook, 22-year-old Joerg Lindner, identified himself as the leader of the escape East Berlin.

Lindner said "we were fed up with conditions in a Communist country and wanted to get away."

He disclosed that the big boat, which can carry 725 passengers, had been stopped by a Vopo patrol boat. He told the Vopos he was heading for the east harbor on the Spree River to pick up two generators for the vessel's 450-horsepower diesel engines.

The patrol said the vessel could proceed, but warned that it must keep to the right of the river — on the East Berlin side.

Lindner said that on the bridge all the usual signals for a right turn were given — but the boat swung left.

The Vopos immediately began firing from all over the place," he said.

'Sea Serpent,' Weed

TOKYO (AP) — A serpent-like "sea monster" found off the eastern coast of Hokkaido Wednesday turned out to be a 45-foot sea weed. Yoshiteru Nakamura, of the Marine Life Research Institute of Hokkaido University, said the weed, which frightened fisherman Yoshiharu Tsuruga, was undoubtedly a kelp from off Puget Sound, Wash.

Tory Gov't 'Spineless' Says Grit

Current increases in the price of gasoline show how little the big American oil companies think of the Conservative government, Victoria Liberal candidate Foster Isherwood said Thursday night.

Mr. Isherwood linked the move to lack of confidence everywhere in the Conservative government after its devaluation of the dollar.

"I should have thought these great companies would have held the line until the election was over," he told 36 persons in Oak Bay Municipal Hall.

"But they listened to the prime minister and thought they could get away with it."

"This one-man government we have is not regarded very highly by our economic leaders; otherwise they would not have increased the price of so basic a commodity."

SPINELESS

It did not seem necessary because of higher production costs to boost the price, said Mr. Isherwood. But Prime Minister Diefenbaker's government had been "spineless" in dealing with industry.

He noted Mr. Diefenbaker had talked threateningly about the gas boost, but he had been talking for five years without action.

"We want deeds, not words," said Mr. Isherwood.

He said Conservative attempts to keep Canada's dollar strong had cost $627,000 since last November, and the public has been forced to pay higher prices for bread, fruits and gas. The cost of living would go up, and municipal taxes would be affected because of higher repayment costs for debentures. Personal savings will dwindle through lost purchasing power.

Any gains by labor in new contracts for higher pay will be wiped out.

"Yet the prime minister regards this as an achievement."

"It is a disastrous situation."

New Medical Chief Only 31 Years Old

Dr. Ralph E. Adams took over this week as medical director of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Only 31 years old, Dr. Adams' career ranges from general surgery at the famous Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., to hospital administration in Chicago.

OREGON UNIVERSITY
Born at Caldwell, Idaho, Dr. Adams obtained a bachelor of science degree at the University of Oregon and became a doctor of medicine at the University of Oregon Medical School.

He studied general surgery at Mayo Clinic and graduated in business and hospital administration from the University of Chicago.

Until recently he was assistant secretary to the council on medical education and hospitals, American Medical Association.

Dr. Adams was invited to appear before the hospital board last December. He liked the hospital and he liked the city.

"I was honored to accept the appointment," he said.

and their two children aged two years and two months.

Dr. Adams succeeds Dr. E. N. Boettcher, who left St. Joseph's last year to become associate director of Hartford Hospital, Connecticut.

FEW REPLIES
The position was advertised in medical publications across Canada and the United States. Because of the high qualifications asked, only a handful of replies were received.

VANCOUVER MLA:

Devaluation Dooms Tories

Devaluation of the dollar is going to defeat many Conservative candidates in the coming federal election, Alex B. Macdonald, MLA for Vancouver East, said Thursday night.

He made the statement at a campaign meeting attended by eight persons at Woodworth Hall. He was speaking in support of Victoria NDP candidate Harry Fanthorpe.

"The dollar drop is a serious declaration of national mismanagement over a period of 10 years. Prices haven't been reduced at all—even the oil companies have no excuse to raise them," he added.

Mr. Macdonald said the dollar devaluation would be one of the reasons Conservative candidate A. deB. McPhillips will be defeated.

CARPETBAGGER

He also believed Liberal candidate Foster Isherwood—whom he referred to as a "carpetbagger"—will not be accepted by the people of Victoria.

"Even I can claim a better relationship to Victoria than can Mr. Isherwood," he said.

The Social Credit government, Mr. Macdonald continued, has not recovered from the "hard shellacking" by reason of their policies in the last two years, and they are campaigning from too far a distance.

Who Raised Prices?

MR. DIEFENBAKER SAYS HIS
Government will act against "greedy" corporations that raise prices without justification. His plans are not clear but whatever they may be he has himself denied his previous statement that devaluation would not seriously affect prices. He admits, contrary to all his earlier assurances, that devaluation has launched a spiral of price increases now only beginning.

Some companies, especially in the oil industry, seem to be taking unfair advantage of the dollar devaluation and raising their prices without any economic excuse. If that is true, Mr. Diefenbaker rightly condemns them but the process now underway cannot be stopped by his threats.

The Government by making the dollar worth less automatically has made most goods potentially worth more. When the dollar falls from 106 to 92½ American cents over a period of five years the whole price structure of Canada will eventually reflect this decline.

If the Government were dealing only with half a dozen big oil companies it might be able to coerce them by one means or another. But, in fact, it is dealing with the entire Canadian economy, all of its costs and prices affected by devaluation.

In the first place nearly all Canadian products have a foreign content of some sort and that content now costs more than it used to cost before devaluation.

Secondly, devaluation has raised a new tariff of roughly 10 per cent against all competitive imports and behind that shelter, as behind all tariffs, Canadian producers will try to push their prices as high as the reduced foreign competition will allow. Thus while the cost of living index showed a minute decline in April, the last month of record just before devaluation, a broad upward movement in prices is under way and will appear a little later on.

It became inevitable as soon as the value of the dollar was reduced. Legally, the federal Government cannot control it since prices fall under provincial jurisdiction. Practically, prices cannot be controlled, even if the problems of jurisdiction are solved, unless the state is prepared to control wages, the major component of prices, and to control the economy in general.

Presumably that is not what the Prime Minister has in mind when he is fighting the election mainly as the champion of free enterprise. His only purpose is to disguise and postpone until the polls close the results of five years' economic and financial mismanagement which have projected Canada into a deep crisis. Of this crisis rising prices are only one symptom.

Others will follow as soon as the election is past.

Warning at the Polls

THE CONSERVATIVES' LOSS of a "safe" seat to Labor in the Middlesbrough West by-election Wednesday re-emphasizes the fact that Prime Minister Macmillan is in trouble.

On the record of this and earlier by-election defeats, the political pundits of London are saying that it is doubtful if Mr. Macmillan could win a general election if it were called today. A year ago there would have been little question of a Conservative victory. What has happened?

There is a general restiveness throughout the nation, particularly among the labor unions. There is widespread criticism of the "wage pause," whereby the government is attempting to keep wage increases within the annual rise of labor's productivity.

There is also discontent over the unsatisfactory rate of the country's economic growth. But a larger question, asked with increasing anxiety in European capitals and in Washington, is whether these political indices show a growing opposition to Britain's approach to the European Common Market.

Certainly this question was not the main issue in recent by-elections. These have shown increased public support for the Liberal Party, which favors British participation in the ECM. The Labor Party, on the other hand, has taken no definite stand on the question of ECM membership. Indeed, it is split within itself on the issue.

So it cannot be said that Government losses to these two parties are attributable to any extent to its stand on ECM. But there exists the possibility that such dangerous by-election reverses may discourage the Government from its ECM plans and frighten it into timid policies.

Mr. Macmillan, of course, is not the sort of leader to retreat under fire. He may characteristically decide to rebuild the government's position and stature, by adopting bold and politically risky courses which though temporarily unpopular, would be basically sound.

The place? An election rally in Quebec. The speaker? Mr. W. A. C. Bennett.

The results of the election? Social Credit gained four, not 40 seats that June. In the next election it was wiped out of the Canadian parliament entirely.

This was scarcely the outcome envisioned by Mr. Bennett when, flushed with his British Columbia success of 1956—a success he termed the "greatest victory for the ordinary people since the day of Magna Carta"—he announced an immediate start on the crusade to power in Ottawa.

Is Mr. Bennett speaking from his five-year-old notes, or are the echoing qualities of Quebec election halls particularly durable?

Five-Year-Old Echo From Quebec

IN MONTREAL THIS WEEK an ebullient Mr. Bennett told a Social Credit political rally, "On June 18 we are going from no members to the government of the Dominion of Canada."

This is a magnificently optimistic prophecy—one worthy of Mr. Bennett, who is given to optimistic prophecy. But the announcement seems vaguely familiar.

On April 22, 1957, a politician told a political rally that Social Credit would win the 40 seats more it needed to gain the balance of power in the June 10 election of that year. The party would then move on to form the government after the next election four or five years later.

'Leave Only Footprints'

IT COST THE UNITED STATES National Parks Service a million dollars last year to clean up and fix up recreation and beauty spots maltreated by litterbugs and vandals. The expense could be doubled if other parks and monuments were included in the figure.

This is an American estimate. No doubt it is higher than that for Canada simply because more people, including more litterbugs and vandals, visited such places in the United States.

But proportionately the bill may be comparable in the two countries—and it could be particularly high in British Columbia.

This province has concerned itself in the last few seasons with the camp-hog—the individual who pre-empted a site on a provincial camping ground and occupies it too long to the exclusion of other potential campers. Now the authorities might turn their attention to another undesirable creature of the recreation areas: the park pig.

Some people leave a mess behind them in parks because they don't know any better. Some are guilty of the same practice through carelessness. And some, the vandals, exercise the kinks of a peculiar mentality to destroy for others what they may have enjoyed themselves. Education can help many overcome their unfortunate practices. If they realize, for instance, that tips of filter cigarettes do not deteriorate and melt inconspicuously into the ground, they may be expected to avoid throwing them on park paths.

If they understand that tins and foil wrappers last almost indefinitely, they may be persuaded to pack them away after they have been used.

The prospect in provincial campsites may be less conducive to cooperation this year. The imposition of a fee, as yet unstated, may create a certain hostility in campers who might otherwise show more consideration for others. If such campers figure they are paying for service, they may be inclined to leave the clean-up work to park attendants.

Such an attitude reflects neither good citizenship nor good manners, but it could develop.

For those who appreciate the parks and campsites, there is a simple rule to follow: "Take nothing away but pictures; leave nothing but footprints." To which may be added an injunction to show litterbugs and vandals a form of public disapproval which may correct their faults.

THE TEACUP POLITICIANS

Can't Tell the Parties Without a System

IT'S all terribly confusing," said Mrs. A. "I mean the candidates and all I have the parties all straightened out, of course, but everybody keeps using just the people's names and then I get all mixed up."

Mrs. B: I know just what you mean. When Harry and the man next door get talking I can't make head or tail of it. They just talk about Joe and Bill and Elmer and what do you think of Assiniboia. It drives me crazy.

Mrs. C: Assiniboia. How I hate that place. I always get it mixed up with Antigonish—or is it Athabasca? Walter's always saying "It looks pretty bad in Vaudreuil-Soulanges," or "I guess we've got Restigouche-Madawaska sewed up." I could murder him sometimes.

Mrs. D: Don't let it get you down, dearie. It's easy to handle. You just nod your head and say, "Is that so?" Or, "Yes, I guess you're right." It soothes them every time.

Mrs. E: I do that. But sometimes when I'm feeling mean I ask, "But how about Pontiac-Temiscamingue?" That really throws them.

Mrs. A: Where is it?

Mrs. E: Where? I don't even know what. But it always seems to work. I heard it on the radio once and it stuck in my mind.

Mrs. B: If only they'd just keep to parties. It's so much easier that way.

Mrs. C: I know, but even that took me a long time. I finally got a system. For instance, when I think of Diefenbaker I think of baker and that reminds me of bread. Then I think of buying a loaf of bread and that makes me think of somebody in the store serving me. Conservatives, see?

Mrs. B: Say, I think you've got something there. Girls, this could really be useful.

Mrs. A: Tell us some more.

Mrs. C: Well, take Pearson. I think of a pierce's glance, like in detective stories. And then I think that the pierce's glance will give the detectives lots of facts, and when they get them all assembled they'll have a liberal supply. It's easy, really.

Mrs. B: I must write all this down. It's just what I've been needing.

Mrs. C: The CCF was no trouble. I never did find out what the letters stand for, but I made up some or it. Actually, I used to think it was CCS, and whenever I heard it mentioned I'd say to myself, See See Sight. But when I found out the real letters I had to change it. Now I just think See See Fright. It doesn't really mean anything, but it helps me to remember. And of course

See See always reminds me of Mr. Coldwell.

Mrs. D: Why?

Mrs. C: I don't know. It just does.

Mrs. E: You never seem to hear about the CCF these days. Whatever happened to them?

Mrs. A: I thought they changed their name.

Mrs. C: They did? You mean I'll have to learn a new system?

Mrs. B: Oh yes. It's GTP now.

Mrs. A: That doesn't seem quite right. I thought it was GNP or something. Eddie's always talking about the GNP. Says it isn't growing fast enough, or something, so I guess the party isn't doing very well.

Mrs. D: How do you remember about Social Credit?

Mrs. C: That's the easiest of all. I just remember that politics is a science. So a BSC, bachelor of science degree, see? And B stands for Bennett, so there you are.

Mrs. A: But I don't think he's the national leader, is he?

Mrs. C: Probably not, but it's all the same thing really.

Mrs. E: I suppose so. It makes politics so interesting when you know all the inside, doesn't it?

Mrs. B: I can hardly wait to get home and spring it on Harry. Let's see now. Baking a liberal supply of bread, wasn't it . . ."

FROM WASHINGTON

Renewal of the Classic Soviet Conflict

IT is becoming clearer and clearer that the West ought to take another hard, new look at the strengths and weaknesses of the Soviet economy.

For a very long time—until the first Sputnik, in fact—the productivity and technical proficiency of the Soviet system were grossly underestimated by most people in the West. But we have now been told, by Nikita Khrushchev in person, that we replaced this gross underestimate by a considerable overestimate.

This Western overestimate of Soviet capabilities is easy enough to explain. On the one hand, the Sputnik proved that Soviet technology was every bit as advanced as American technology, at least in certain fields. If thereby made nonsense of what may be called the clumsy moulin theory of the Soviet economy, which was even preached, pre-Sputnik, by a few of the leading Western experts on the Soviet Union.

On the other hand, and even more important, the rude awakening of the Sputnik called Western attention to the very high Soviet rate of economic growth.

Because of this rate of growth, the Soviet leaders appear to be able to offer the Russian people a modest but continuous (and therefore satisfying) improvement in their level of life, while simultaneously financing the most massive military and basic industrial investment. The high rate of basic investment in turn seemed to assure the continued rapid economic growth.

Education can help many overcome their unfortunate practices. If they realize, for instance, that tips of filter cigarettes do not deteriorate and melt inconspicuously into the ground, they may be expected to avoid throwing them on park paths.

If they understand that tins and foil wrappers last almost indefinitely, they may be persuaded to pack them away after they have been used.

The prospect in provincial campsites may be less conducive to cooperation this year. The imposition of a fee, as yet unstated, may create a certain hostility in campers who might otherwise show more consideration for others.

If such campers figure they are paying for service, they may be inclined to leave the clean-up work to park attendants. Such an attitude reflects neither good citizenship nor good manners, but it could develop.

Although the theory of the Soviets' limitless upward spiral promised that there would always be enough to go around, Khrushchev has now told us that there is nothing like enough. He has also told us that the Soviet leadership, as always in the past, has once again given priority to the military-heavy-industrial sector. Here, investments are not being skimped.

But this calls into question another recently fashionable Western theory about the Soviet Union—that the closed Soviet society is bound to become more and more open, free, and even bourgeois, as the rising Soviet living standard comes closer and closer to the American or Western living standard.

Adlai E. Stevenson plotted out a version of this theory in a speech made only a day or so after Khrushchev spoke.

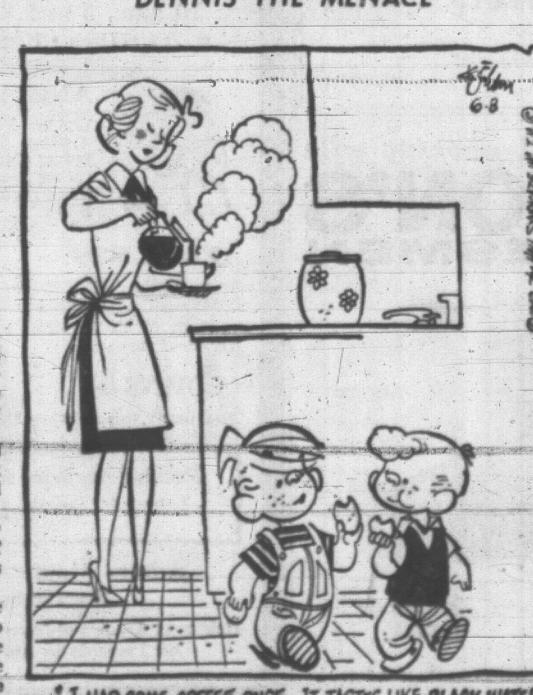

Not Rising

The price rises in meat and dairy products, and the increasingly uncomfortable Soviet shortages of all other foodstuffs except bread itself, mean that the Soviet living standard is not rising.

For the Russian laboring masses, food still means much more than such costly consumer goods as television sets. The year when the Soviet masses had eaten best was 1959. Since then the standard has declined rather sharply.

This decline has occurred, moreover,

Dollars for Universities

With reference to your recent editorial, and at the risk of being accused of being "petty and parochial," to use your words, I am writing as one who has supported financially and otherwise both UBC and Victoria College, and will do so again.

The problem of university education in this province, as enunciated by Dr. McKenzie, is basically a financial one. Dr. McKenzie has never stated, to my knowledge, that if Victoria College is given complete autonomy as an independent university, higher education standards will be damaged thereby. He has not done so because he knows that the proponents of university status for Victoria advocate complete co-operation with UBC, including the granting of a UBC degree for years to come.

Dr. McKenzie is, quite rightly, concerned however that there is a possibility that, for every dollar spent in Victoria, there will be one less for Vancouver. Now there are many people (not particularly petty or parochial) who think UBC is becoming far too big and the creation of a separate university in Victoria reducing the future growth of UBC would be an excellent step.

... A Toast Once Again'

Dr. Peter Smith tells me that Victoria College has decided to set up its own archives.

He adds, with the resignation of a fisherman shanghaied to help his wife in the garden, that he seems to have been put in charge of the project. "Temporarily," he adds, hopefully.

Dr. Peter Smith is too gentlemanly a person to dare back and ask "Why me?" — or should it be "Why I?" (The verb "to be" takes the same case, etc., etc.)

At all events, he thinks the project is a good idea, and I think it couldn't have happened to a nicer guy.

Certainly he's a person who will attract the assistance of a large number of people with a deep affection for Victoria College. And they can start helping immediately.

Pete would like to fill in the gaps in the existing collection of "Camousons" during years of High School-College affiliation from 1906 to 1912 and other numbers missing from the 1914 and 1915 files. He'd appreciate old pictures, documents concerning the earlier days of the College and untold tales imbedded in its history—untold because their personal nature might be embarrassing to someone. Dr. Smith promises absolute discretion in their use and complete anonymity for the suppliers.

The documents or pictures in question need not be surrendered by their owners. The College can have them copied and then returned.

The assembly of such material, I believe, will add considerably to the tradition and background of the College. Had I any, I'd certainly forward it to him—but I tore up all my old dance programs when I got married.

If he promises to keep the source anonymous, I'd be prepared to offer a few reminiscences on one of Craigdarroch's vanished eras—Class of '30, that is.

When we talk nowadays about riotously living youth and the ill-disciplined College boys, I can't help remembering the empty loganberry wine bottles that used to lie on

Stott

Craigdarroch's former tennis courts following College parties just after the coonskin coat epoch.

To flesh up the archives, maybe they ought to have a few of those old empties stashed away—evidence of a small fragment of social and economic history. Times were rough in those days. So was the fortified loganberry wine. But it came in large, I believe, square-faced bottles, 40-centres, and it cost less than the average contribution to the Community Chest.

Hardly the stuff of which archives are made? Perhaps not. But what is more nostalgic or sentimentally genuine than the "Old Oaken Bucket"? And even in the hard times of the thirties, we didn't always drink water.

Or, as a sample of folkways, perhaps I could confide in him—in strictest confidence, of course—the ribald words of something a little lower in the scale than the "Beggars' Opera." We tried, it in close harmony—Bill Robbins, Ian MacQueen and I lying on the fragrant green outside the biology lab where we were doing a little post-sessional clean-up job on our biology books. Jeff insisted that we finish our drawings of homologous brains and homologous bones of vertebrates (?). I've always intended to find out what "homologous" means.

In the less disreputable realm of music, I'd like to have a picture to give Peter of Don Watson bawling out the drinking song from the Student Prince, while we who were young clustered around the old piano inflicting scars on the Romberg score that would shame a Heidelberg duellist.

* * *

I'd like to see in the College archives some symbol of the gentle kindness and consideration of Dr. E. B. Paul. I'd like to see an exhibit indicative of the dry, shrewd humor of another scholar and gentleman, Percy Elliott. How could you record for posterity his long, poker face, as he told assembled students during a school board inflicted "no-smoking" regime that he'd burn any cigarette he found on them—and burn it right under his nose?

I don't know if archives can put flesh and blood on College tradition and history.

If they can't, maybe skeletons are better than nothing. We've no doubt a few of those, along with a dusty and empty loganberry wine bottle or two.

HOME GARDENPlease, No Clippers on Rhodos!

Earlier this week I mentioned the pruning of brooms as the flowers fade and gardeners have been phoning to know if rhododendrons and azaleas should be treated in the same way.

Grown in suitable conditions, both rhododendrons and azaleas will have started new growth immediately behind the head of blossoms long before the flowers have faded.

Pruning is not done on either of these plants since it would remove these growths which are to carry next year's display.

On small plants, the blossom heads only may be picked off by hand, but such a job is almost impossible on large specimens unless one has unlimited time and patience.

More important than anything else is water. Rhodos and azaleas come from a country which has an annual rainfall of around 60 inches a year.

The best we can do in Victoria is near 30 inches, and most of that falls during the late fall, winter, and early spring months.

This means that the gardener has to apply another 30 inches of water during late spring and summer if rhodos and azaleas are to be grown successfully. Most of this additional water should be supplied before the middle of August, tapering off until the fall rains take over.

Second in importance is a heavy mulch of acid-peat moss over the entire root area after the soil has been thoroughly saturated with a soaker. This keeps the sun's heat from scorching the fine roots which are near the surface. Ideally, the peat moss should be well moistened in pails or tubs before being applied, otherwise it blows around in the breeze and is difficult to dampen.

Thirdly, use only an acid fertilizer for these plants. It can be purchased at all feed stores as Acid Mix or Rhododendron-Azalea Fertilizer and is applied in the amounts specified by the manufacturer.

Additional water should be supplied before the middle of August, tapering off until the fall rains take over.

COMMONWEALTH ISSUE LOOMS

Pros, Cons on ECM Standing Pat

By DAVE O'NCIA
LONDON (CP)—The lineup of forces for and against British Common Market membership remains unchanged after the two-day parliamentary debate that ended Thursday.

Prime Minister Macmillan's government failed to win any converts to the idea that Britain should seek a place in the European Economic Community, commonly known as the Common Market.

The Labor party maintained its position of refusing to come out either for or against joining until the broad outlines of a possible agreement are known.

The anti-Common Market members in both parties, remained unmoved by the assurances and expositions given by government leaders.

WINDS UP DEBATE

It was to the latter that Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath, Britain's chief market negotiator, made his appeal in winding up the debate.

"I do not believe it is beyond the bounds of mankind to achieve reconciliation of the two concepts of our Commonwealth and Europe together," he said.

"We are dealing not with a small question or a big question of tariffs or trade, but with fundamental human values, because they affect the future of millions of people here in Europe, in the Commonwealth and right across the world and that is what gives us the inspiration to carry on."

Earlier Commonwealth relations Secretary Duncan Sandy reiterated an assurance that Britain would not enter the community on terms that would disrupt the Commonwealth.

He also urged Commonwealth leaders to be reserved in their comments on individual agreements reached in Brussels until they see the outline of a pos-

NEW HEART IN 10 YEARS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Replacement of a bad heart with a good one is possible in humans within the next five to 10 years, a Yale University professor said Thursday. Such transplants have been made with dogs but have been only partially successful, mainly because the body seems to reject tissues of a strange heart, Dr. William W. L. Glenn told the Kentucky Heart Association. But development of remarkable plastic materials may speed the day of human transplants.

SASK. MEDICARE

'You Will Win' ... Douglas

By BEN WARD

SASKATOON (CP) — T. C. Douglas says the people in the province were before Saskatchewan are "a tough small group in Regina, where bunch." He has a hunch that he is seeking a federal seat, they are going to win this fight."

The New Democratic Party leader was referring to the Saskatchewan Medical Care Act speech in which he outlined the party's proposals to end unemployment, boost farm income through parity prices and promote new economic expansion.

The NDP also would set up a national medical care plan, to be administered by the provinces with 60-per-cent federal aid.

He received a standing ovation from the crowd of 3,000 in the Saskatoon Arena when he said he is confident that the Medical Care Act will succeed. The NDP party leader was making his first major Saskatchewan address of the campaign. His earlier appearances were before MANHUNT was continuing today for Dr. Harvey Rothlinger, 41, wealthy New York physician, after dismembered parts of young woman's body were found jammed in sewer trap of his $75,000 home. Police suspect the body may be that of college sophomore, Barbara Lofrumento, 19, who went to the doctor's home for an abortion.

NEAR END OF SPEECH

His references to medical care came near the end of a speech in which he outlined the party's proposals to end unemployment, boost farm income through parity prices and promote new economic expansion.

The NDP also would set up a national medical care plan, to be administered by the provinces with 60-per-cent federal aid.

He told his audience not to be confused about medical opposition to the Saskatchewan plan.

"You must make a sharp distinction between the Canadian Medical Association, the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons and the doctors themselves," he said. The organizations were bitterly opposed to the plan because it was the first step toward a national medical care act. Yet many of the doctors themselves were in favor of it.

"Hundreds of doctors support our plan and want it to be introduced across the country," SHOULD NOT WORRY

The 57-year-old former premier of the province said the people of Saskatchewan should not be worried about the threat of the doctors to move out of the province when the medical bill becomes law July 1.

It was also suggested the advisability of tourists exchanging their currency before coming to Canada be more widely publicized.

The Victoria tourist information centre at the Seattle World's Fair and B.C. House in San Francisco will be asked to co-operate.

Lloyd Davies was elected chairman of the group succeeding Cliff Rutledge in the coming season. Al Neuer will succeed Bernie Rogers as vice-chairman.

SOCRED LEADER IN ARGUE'S RIDING

'Vote Positive' Thompson Advises Sask.

WEYBURN Sask. (CP) — Saskatchewan voters should quit their negative approach to elections, National Social Credit Leader Robert N. Thompson told a public meeting Thursday night.

"It is time for people of Saskatchewan to get something, not just against something," he told 150 persons in the 200-seat hall in this southeastern Saskatchewan city.

"Let's get positive. The Social Credit party comes to you with a positive message."

Mr. Thompson backed up Aspinwall constituency Social Credit candidate Daryl Rumble, who said the people of Saskatchewan, with their negative planned economy, it has been voted, had turned to the CCF in the 1930s to get rid of the Liberals. Now the situation was reversing and the people were saying they must vote for the old line parties to get rid of the CCF.

Mr. Thompson was speaking in the area represented for 27 years by National NDP Leader T. C. Douglas, either federally or provincially. It has been represented federally since 1945 by the Liberal's recently-acquired Hazen Argue.

Twenty years ago Saskatchewan was the most active province east of Ontario, Mr. Thompson said. "Today, after years of Tom my Douglas' choose how to satisfy their individual to live his own life in the way he wants, and the creating by government of conditions under which both he and his country have the freedom to grow unhampered by control planning and red tape."

Quote Cards Proposed On $ Issue

Victoria Chamber of Commerce may experiment with cards to be distributed to merchants giving daily quotations on the U.S. dollar for the benefit of American tourists.

The plan was discussed at a breakfast meeting Thursday of the chamber's retail merchants' group after some tourists complained of not receiving the eight cents exchange on their money.

It was also suggested the advisability of tourists exchanging their currency before coming to Canada be more widely publicized.

The Victoria tourist information centre at the Seattle World's Fair and B.C. House in San Francisco will be asked to co-operate.

Lloyd Davies was elected chairman of the group succeeding Cliff Rutledge in the coming season. Al Neuer will succeed Bernie Rogers as vice-chairman.

Reception Planned For 300 Chileans

Victorians will be asked to help guide and entertain some 300 visiting Chileans who make a centennial stop here aboard the naval training schooner Esmeralda June 13-17.

Ald. Arthur Dowell Thursday asked members of city council finance committee for ideas on how to offer hospitality to the 17 Spanish-speaking officers, 65 cadets and 226 seamen from the four-masted vessel.

SHOULD NOT WORRY

The 57-year-old former premier of the province said the people of Saskatchewan should not be worried about the threat of the doctors to move out of the province when the medical bill becomes law July 1.

Two years ago the doctors said they would leave if the CCF government of this province was re-elected. Well, it was re-elected and you all know what a big bluff the threat turned out to be.

Dief Violating His Own Bill of Rights—Liberal

Soft-Pedal Agreement On Columbia?

Premier Bennett and Prime Minister Diefenbaker have apparently made an agreement not to discuss the issue of B.C. hydro power during the election campaign. Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane said

"It is significant in this campaign there is no longer a struggle between Mr. Bennett and Ottawa," he said.

In fact Mr. Diefenbaker in Prince George had used almost the same words as Premier Bennett in describing what should be done.

"Policies shouldn't change during an election. I think it's a shocking thing," said Mr. Macfarlane.

He also attacked the premier for saying in Nova Scotia that Social Credit would return crown corporations to private enterprise.

"There will be some big questions for him when he comes back. Maybe he will tell us if he is going to be consistent and give B.C. Electric back."

It's suggested he's deprived B.C. Electric of most of its assets—maybe he'll do that."

Ashes of Veteran Rest in Cathedral

Ashes of Major the Hon. Arthur Marcus Lowther Crofton, age 63, of Scott Road, Ganges, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital on May 26, were laid in Christ Church Cathedral columbarium on Thursday.

The service was conducted by Padre Douglas Kendall.

Major Crofton was born in Ireland, the younger son of the late Lord Crofton of Mote Park, County Roscommon. He was educated at Cheam, Wellington and Sandhurst, and served in the Irish Guards in both world wars, retiring in 1947.

He came to Canada following the Second World War and after a short stay on Salt Spring Island moved to Victoria, where he lived until four months ago, when he and Mrs. Crofton returned to Salt Spring.

Major Crofton was predeceased in 1960 by his only son, Francis Marcus, midshipman, RN. He is survived by the widow, Madeleine Barbara, at home; a sister, the Hon. Lady Hughes-Onslow in Scotland; a stepson, Lt.-Cdr. Denis Hugh Pratt, RCN, at Dartmouth, N.S., also cousins at Ganges and in Victoria.

The prime minister had done a great disservice to himself and Canada "because he's sweeping away one fundamental freedom in the bill of rights."

"This is a shocking and unforgivable example."

Mr. Macfarlane said the bill of rights had also proved ineffective in the B.C. legislature when Premier Bennett wiped out appeal to the courts against his B.C. Electric takeover terms.

In Shawinigan Lake Tuesday Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton had been advertised as speaking about the bill of rights, but both he and the prime minister were instead making speeches attacking other parties and the press.

Mr. Macfarlane also took a verbal swing at Victoria Conservative candidate A. deB. McPhillips.

"That freedom was swept aside," said Mr. Macfarlane.

The second was rejection of would-be Victoria Tory candidate W. C. Gelling by the local party executive on a technicality.

"A number of people wanted to have better representation. They were denied that right by the people in control of the situation—a situation of which we can hardly be proud."

The third concerned freedom of the press.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker bitterly criticized an Ottawa press gallery member for reporting his Edmonton campaign meeting was a flop.

WEAK VOICE

Mr. McPhillips had been doing some talking about how he could "beat a path to cabinet ministers' doors," but in Ottawa he had not been talking about things that were really important—such as the European Common Market, defence policy and deficit financing.

"On these issues there has been not one squeak from the member for Victoria."

"It may be that when he beat his way to the doors of cabinet ministers he found his voice was so weak in those circles he could do little about them."

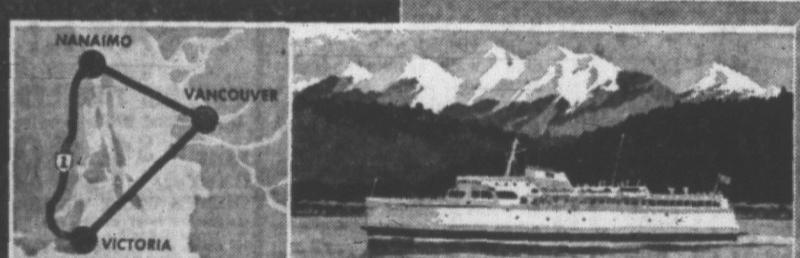

Congratulations...

The Teachers of the Province say:
"Good Luck and a Bright Future"
to this month's High School Graduates!

The need for qualified teachers for B.C.'s schools is greater today than ever before.

When our High School graduates are choosing their vocation, we hope that many will decide to enter the Teaching Profession.

Medicare Amendment Considered

ROSETOWN, Sask. (CP)—Saskatchewan's education minister, Ole Turnbull, suggested Thursday that the provincial government may amend its Medical Care Insurance Act.

"The sections in the act which are causing concern," he said, "for instance Section 49, could be considered and amended to the satisfaction of both the government and the College of Physicians and Surgeons."

Mr. Turnbull made the statement before a group of citizens, including Rosetown Mayor Jack Pinckney.

Opposition to the act by the doctors has been especially strong against Section 49, an provision except under the act amendment to the original act as passed at the spring session of the legislature.

The amendment prohibits doctors from practising within the province under the act.

Minister A. M. Nicholson who said there were "indications there would be some concessions" regarding the act after the federal election June 18. He refused to say who would make the concessions.

CITY GOLF FINAL

Take Your Pick

The damp course was "neutral," the players appeared about on a par and the situation a "take your pick" one as Shirley Naysmith and defending champion Margaret Todd stepped to the first tee this morning for the 18-hole final of the city women's golf championship.

Past performances in the annual tournament normally might suggest Mrs. Todd, a ten-time winner of the city trophy, a distinct favorite.

But the week's performances by Mrs. Naysmith, also a former winner in this event, seemingly balances the scales.

Mrs. Naysmith continued her steady play Thursday by defeating Uplands' Joan Lawson, 2 and 1. The Gorge Vale champion was only two over par when the match ended on Uplands' 17th green.

Mrs. Todd was three over in winning 6 and 4 over Colwood's Edna Hay.

Mrs. Naysmith took the lead on the third hole when Mrs. Lawson hit a ball out of bounds and never looked back. Shirley was four up at the turn and five up after 11.

Mrs. Todd started off poorly, recovered in brilliant fashion and then played "commercial golf" after making the turn, also with a four-up lead.

THE VICTORS AND THE VANQUISHED

GAYLE'S FLUBBED PUTT ENDS PLAYOFF QUICKLY

VANCOUVER — Janet MacWha, a 26-year-old high school teacher, Thursday won the Vancouver women's golf championship by the margin of a missed two-foot putt.

Gaye Hitchens, 18-year-old Canadian junior champion, missed the key putt on the first sudden-death playoff hole after both golfers had tied with 238s for the 34 holes.

Miss MacWha, who won last year's Canadian Closed title and plans to move back to her Montreal home at the end of the summer, sank an eight-foot putt on the extra hole for a par five.

Gay Gets Jump On Glamor Boys

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Gay Brewer got the jump on the game's glamor boys, but two of golfdom's better-known players — Doug Sanders and Chandler Harper — also got in their innings in the opening round of the $100,000 Classic Open.

Harper and Sanders fired holes-in-one, the first time two aces had been made on the same day on the PGA tour this year. The ace helped Sanders to score a 68, while Harper was far off the leader's pace.

Brewer was the big man with his six-under-par 66.

PALMER FALTERS

Tournament favorite Arnold Palmer was seven strokes off the pace with a 73. Wheezing from a recent cold and struggling with recalcitrant irons, the leading money-winner had a bad day.

Brewer, 30, one-putting eight greens and three-putting another for his one-over-par hole, took a one-stroke lead over Gene Little, U.S. Open champion, and Earl Stewart, a 40-year-old pro from Dallas. They had 67s.

Dave Ragan and Fred Hawkins were tied at 68. Jack Nicklaus was bracketed at 69 with Sanders, Jack Burke, Mason Rudolph, Dave Marr and Frank Boynton.

Gary Player of South Africa, like Palmer, had an erratic 73. George Knudson of Winnipeg fired a 36-34-70; Stan Leonard of Vancouver a 34-38-72; Al Balding of Toronto a 37-40-77; and Al Johnston of Montreal a 41-37-78.

Gail's Two-Hitter Stops Thorbers

Gail Archibald struck out 11 batters and gave up only two hits Thursday as Vicetts, senior women's softballers, whipped Thorbers, juvenile boys, 6-2 at Central Park.

Victory lifted Vicetts into a first place tie with Thorbers in the city Juvenile Boys' League. Vicetts 300 020 6-2 9 Thorbers 300 020 6-2 0 Archibald and Crook, Merritt and Breslin.

Brazil, Chile Opposed By Six European Rivals

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Defending champion Brazil and Chile stand in the way of a European team winning its first world soccer championship in and in Brazil in 1950.

The championship previously has been decided twice in South America with Uruguay winning in 1930 both times at home in 1930 and in Brazil in 1950. Brazil's team is the only South American club to capture the coveted Jules Rimet Trophy in Europe. Brazil defeated Sweden in the 1958 finals in Stockholm.

Six European teams and two South American teams—Brazil and Chile—have reached the quarter-final series to be played on Sunday. The first and second finishers in each of the four groups made the quarter-finals.

LAST TO QUALIFY

England and Yugoslavia were the last to qualify for the quarter-finals following Thursday's matches. England played to a scoreless tie with Bulgaria and Yugoslavia beat Colombia 3-0.

In the quarter-finals the Soviet plays Chile, West Germany plays Yugoslavia, Brazil plays England and Hungary plays Czechoslovakia.

The low scores of the games 1-0 and 2-1, Argentina and Hungary the winners—are indicative of the tight defensive soccer that is being played in the world series. Talking to fans who watched games at the other three venues, I gained the impression that a policy of negative football and waiting for opponents to make mistakes has been ordered by coaches of the various national teams.

toward boring, play-it-safe defensive tactics marred several of the opening games in the tournament for the Jules Rimet Trophy and may be among the reasons why Chilean authorities are liable to wind up with a whopping financial deficit after staging the world series of soccer.

Preliminary matches in the four groups concluded Thursday and the two top teams from each group will begin quarterfinal play on Sunday. The final will be played here in Santiago June 17.

Prices Too Steep for Chilean Fans

After Argentina had scored a goal in the fourth minute, the club went into a close defensive pattern which the Bulgarians could not solve. The match was marred as a spectacle by charging tactics by both teams and a total of 76 infringements were called by the Dutch referee.

An all-night rain made conditions difficult at Rancagua for Hungary and England. The Iron-Curtain country scored an early goal and then, with the help of a seven-man defensive platoon, completely stymied the inept English forwards.

England's goal came from a penalty kick and both sides gave the impression that they were content with a draw despite until a late-game defensive error by England allowed their rivals to snatch the two points.

Organizers of the competition must be greatly concerned over poor attendance at the Rancagua games. The first two matches attracted only 11,000 fans. Even in Santiago, the 100,000-seat stadium was only half filled and one wonders whether the Chilean hosts will be able to meet their huge financial commitments.

Things were no better at Rancagua Thursday as England earned a place in the quarterfinal round by playing to a dull, scoreless, tie with Bulgaria with only about 5,000 spectators in the stadium.

One reason advanced for the unexpectedly-small attendance is that the price of tickets—$6

And several of the residents have told me they do not believe that the quality of the games thus far merits such a high admission price. And most of them also deplored the predominance of rough charging tactics.

All, however, are hoping that the calibre will improve as the championship progresses and capacity crowds will turn out for the remaining matches.

England's goal came from a penalty kick and both sides gave the impression that they were content with a draw despite until a late-game defensive error by England allowed their rivals to snatch the two points.

Organizers of the competition must be greatly concerned over poor attendance at the Rancagua games. The first two matches attracted only 11,000 fans. Even in Santiago, the 100,000-seat stadium was only half filled and one wonders whether the Chilean hosts will be able to meet their huge financial commitments.

Things were no better at Rancagua Thursday as England earned a place in the quarterfinal round by playing to a dull, scoreless, tie with Bulgaria with only about 5,000 spectators in the stadium.

One reason advanced for the unexpectedly-small attendance is that the price of tickets—$6 for the cheapest seats—is too steep for the Chilean fans.

And several of the residents have told me they do not believe that the quality of the games thus far merits such a high admission price. And most of them also deplored the predominance of rough charging tactics.

All, however, are hoping that the calibre will improve as the championship progresses and capacity crowds will turn out for the remaining matches.

rushed off in trucks.

It was the second demonstration this week by the students demanding a "status of forces" agreement giving South Korea jurisdiction over American servicemen for crimes committed while not on duty.

Americans now are tried in U.S. military courts for all offenses—whether on or off duty.

The student agitation started with the disclosure that two American lieutenants had beat up a South Korean caught intruding into their camp May 29.

Some 40 students were rounded up by police and Marshall lost control of his machine, smashed head-on into a truck and was killed. The swan escaped with minor injuries.

'Customers' Are Getting Restless

Canada's government is in the position of the storekeeper with empty shelves, no money in the till, a badly damaged credit rating and a hard winter ahead, according to David Groos, Liberal candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich in the June 18 federal election.

"We think the customers realize the situation and they are getting a little nervous and restless," he told about 12 persons in Langford Community Hall on Thursday evening.

"They are only beginning to get the bills."

Mr. Groos said that the Lib establishment of a new power-said, and it is the record of ers would, if elected, put a full group for peace, the non-national medical coverage into nuclear nations whose task is effect that would not be opposed by doctors, because it would be to halt the spread of nuclear weapons and then calm and separate the protagonists.

Canada would play its greatest rôle, he indicated, in the however, is still the same, he issue of the election.

"It is up to the voters."

'I Won't Quit' —IWA Agent

DUNCAN—Percy Clements, who was discharged by president Weldon C. Jubenville as business agent of Local 1-80, International Woodworkers of America, has challenged Mr. Jubenville's edict and refuses to quit.

"Article 12 of our union constitution is very clear in that it places authority to hire and fire exclusively in the hands of the local executive board," he said in a prepared statement. "They and they alone have this right, and then only after confirmation by the local membership."

He said the president has the authority to recommend his dismissal to the executive, but that Mr. Jubenville had not done this.

AWAITS DECISION

"I refuse to accept the discharge, and await the member's decision," he said.

Mr. Clements actually is a candidate for the presidency of the local, and it was on the strength of a "campaign" meeting that Mr. Jubenville gave him notice.

The two men took part in the regular election more than a month ago, but because the count was disputed, it was held once again for this position alone. Ballots will be counted Monday and Tuesday, and the result will be announced Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

LADYSMITH—Anne Carolyn Clark today has been awarded a $250 general program scholarship by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., Chemainus division, for excellence in her work at Ladysmith High School.

Anne received the top mark in her class during the Grade 12 year, her average being greater than 82 per cent. She was editor of the high school annual and has been class representative to the student council and the Junior Red Cross. In athletics she was a member of the Referees Club and the Timers and Scorers Clubs. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Clark of Ladysmith.

The award is one of seven $250 general program scholarships and nine $500 university entrance scholarships provided annually by the company in areas where it has forest industry operations. The company also presents a number of additional scholarships for advanced education.

LADYSMITH—A low bid of $39,217.31 from Cowichan Construction Limited of Duncan has been accepted by the School District 67 building committee for construction of the two-room Davis Road School here.

The bid must receive department of education approval before construction can begin.

Other tenders received were from Wheatoft Construction Limited, Nanaimo, $41,350; M & G Construction, Victoria, $41,736; Quinney and Fuller Limiter, Nanaimo, $42,198; G. E. Millhouse Limited, Vancouver, $42,381.

Tenders will be called soon for a one-room addition to the North Oyster School which was approved this week by the department.

GANGES—Peace of Vereeniging, signed 60 years ago to mark the end of the South African War, was commemorated by a Royal Canadian Legion dinner this week at Harbour House Hotel.

Special guests were the following veterans of the war: F. J. C. Ball, R. T. Britton, A. Davis, L. D. B. Drummond, W. D. McLean, J. Mitchell, J.

HE'S A REAL BOOSTER OF 'HARD' CURRENCY

CAMPBELL RIVER—Gordon Mason likes to sell outboard motors, but for a few minutes this week, he wondered what he was getting into.

A prospective customer walked into his shop with a heavy box under his arm, and asked to look at some motors.

After selecting the motor he wanted, the man dumped the box upside down on the counter, picked up his motor and left. Price was $225, including tax.

The box was full of 50-cent pieces.

"We counted them," Mr. Mason said, "and sure enough, there were 450 of them."

TOP-HATTERS SEEKING MEMBERS

Victoria may soon have a new "day" each week—gray top hat Friday.

It's an idea of Mayor R. B. Wilson to pep up the Centennial feeling in the city—a club of distinguished citizens who agree to wear an 1862-type top hat, a centennial tie, and a lapel button every Friday during centennial year.

As is the case with most clubs, there's an admission fee—$10, which covers the cost of accessories as well as membership.

Joining up today is Empress Hotel host Cyril Chapman. Top hats, ties, buttons and memberships are available at the Centennial Office, 1309 Douglas Street.

WEATHER BAD

HMS Bounty Now Due Tuesday

The replica of HMS Bounty, delayed by bad weather, is now scheduled to berth in the Inner Harbor at 10 a.m. Tuesday for a two-day stay.

Her Vancouver visit, originally planned for Saturday and Sunday, will follow the visit here.

The tiny 110-foot vessel is in severe storm conditions today off the Oregon coast, where foul weather has maintained for several days.

The Bounty will make an indirect approach to the city, from Race Rocks to Discovery Island, and then close in on the Beach Drive-Dallas Road shore, so spectators can get a good look at her. She should be visible in sight by 8 a.m.

She will be open to visitors from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. during her two-day stay.

SCALE MODEL

The $500,000 scale model of the Royal Navy vessel which figured in the world's most-publicized mutiny was built for scenes in the forthcoming Marlon Brando film "Mutiny on the Bounty." The original ship was the command of Capt. William Bligh, whose alleged severity was blamed for the mutiny in 1789 led by one of his officers, Fletcher Christian.

Capt. Ellsworth Coggins, a former RCN officer, has command of the Bounty replica.

CHILE SCHOONER

Also due in Victoria waters next week is the Chilean training-schooner Esmeralda, scheduled to berth at the government jetty, Esquimalt Harbour, at 9 a.m. Wednesday.

Before entering the harbor, the visitor will exchange a series of salutes. The ship will fire a 21-gun national salute, which will bring a 21-gun reply from the saluting battery at Black Rock in HMC Dockyard.

Esmeralda will then fire 13 guns, for Rear-Admiral E. W. Finch-Noyes, and the reply will be seven guns, for the commanding officer, Cmdr. Daniel Arellano MacLeod.

The 308-foot four-masted sailing ship is coming here on the invitation of the Victoria Centennial Committee.

City Minister Leaves July 1 For Mainland

Rev. Stanley F. Sears, assistant minister at First United Church, is leaving here July 1 to become minister of Lynn Valley United Church in North Vancouver.

"I am very happy about the appointment," he said today. "It is a new church in a growing district and I expect to find lots of opportunity there."

Mr. Sears has been assistant minister to Rev. A. I. Higgins at First United since May, 1960, when he came here from the United Church at Sutton, Ont.

He will preach his last sermon at First United Church on Sunday, June 24.

$500 FOR SOUVENIR BILL

Seeing Is Believing For Centennial Winner

A housewife with four children refused to believe this morning she was the winner of $500.

"I won't believe it until I see the money," said Mrs. George Holland, 730 Canterbury.

Mrs. Holland had just stepped inside the door when the phone rang.

"This is Mayor Harris speaking, do you have a centennial $1.00 bill?"

When she replied yes, he said: "You are the first winner of our contest and entitled to $500."

Until she sees the money Mrs. Holland has no plans as to how she will use it.

This centennial contest will continue throughout the summer. Each week there is no winner the prize goes up $100.

Due to today's success it is now back to $100.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED FOR VISIT

Plenty of Locations To See Princess Mary

Victorians will have countless opportunities to see Her Royal Highness the Princess Royal during her visit to the city June 13-17.

Details of her visit have been completed, and times and travel routes have been set for her numerous public appearances.

She will arrive at Patricia Bay by air Wednesday at 7 p.m., to be met by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes and Premier Bennett. She will meet heads of the armed services here, then at 7:10 p.m. will be taken to Government House.

Route to be followed will be Patricia Bay Highway to Douglas Street, Fort Street, Cook, then Rockland Avenue.

Thursday will be free for Princess Mary, with no official engagements listed.

Friday she will leave Government House at 10 a.m. and travel by way of Rockland, Vancouver, Burdett, Quadra, Blanshard and Belleville to the west entrance of the Legislative Buildings.

Arriving at 10:10, she will be met by Premier Bennett, then will meet cabinet members and their wives.

Plaque Unveiling at Buildings

At 10:30 she will unveil a plaque in the buildings' rotunda in remembrance of the officers and men of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) who were killed in two world wars.

The royal party will leave at 10:40 for the City Hall, travelling along Government, Cormorant and Douglas Streets.

Mayor R. B. Wilson will present members of his council and their wives, and reeves of neighboring municipalities and their wives. Her Royal Highness will sign the city visitors' book, then will accept a centennial gift from the city.

At 11:10 Princess Mary will leave City Hall, driving along Douglas, Pandora and Fort to Royal Jubilee Hospital, then arrive at Royal Jubilee Hospital at 11:20 a.m. to lay the cornerstone of the new wing now under construction.

With the ceremony over at 11:45, she will return to Government House along Fort, Richmond, Oak Bay Avenue and Rockland.

At 2:30 p.m. Princess Mary will leave Government House, and be taken by way of Rockland, Cook and Burdett to the Law Courts, arriving at 3. She will declare the building open, will visit the Court of Appeal, then will leave at 3:45.

Driving on Burdett, Blanshard, Pembroke and Quadra to Victoria Curling Club, she will arrive at 3:55 to open the Victoria Horticultural Society flower show which celebrates the city's centenary.

Saturday for Canadian Scottish

Departure for Government House will be at 4:30, and the route will be along Quadra, Yates, Cook and Rockland. After inspection of Girl Guides and Brownies, Princess Mary will make no more public appearances for the day.

Saturday will be given over entirely to the Canadian Scottish, of which she is colonel-in-chief. Main ceremony will be the presentation of colors at Beacon Hill Park, which also is the prime reason for her forthcoming visit to the city.

At 10:15 a.m. she will leave Government House for Pioneer Square, driving via Rockland, Cook and Burdett.

After inspecting veterans and laying a wreath, she will leave at 10:50 for Macdonald Park along Quadra, Fort, Douglas, Belleville, Oswego and Simcoo.

The Princess Royal will inspect six cadet corps, then at 11:30 will return to Government House along Simcoe, Oswego, Dallas, Moss and Rockland.

At 1:30 p.m. she will leave Government House with Honorary Colonel Frank M. Ross. Route to the Beacon Hill Park parade ground will be along Rockland, Cook, Dallas and Douglas.

She will leave the park at 3, driving up Douglas Street to Bay Street Armory, arriving at 3:10. She will leave at 5, returning to Government House on Bay, Cook and Rockland.

At 6:30 she will return to the armory along Rockland, Cook, Fort and Douglas. After a regimental dinner, she will return to Government House along Bay, Blanshard, Fort, Cook and Rockland.

Sunday she will leave Government House at 10:50 a.m., driving along Rockland, Cook, Burdett and Quadra to Christ Church Cathedral.

At noon following completion of the morning service, she will be taken to Patricia Bay Airport via Quadra, Fort, Douglas and Patricia Bay Highway. Departure for Vancouver is scheduled for 12:45 p.m.

TWO SHOWS TODAY

Circus Glitter Pours From Trailer Trucks

By IAN SMITH

The clowns were in street clothes and the girls had their hair in curlers.

A circus loses its glitter when it's packed away in fold.

A llama was tethered behind the performing poodles. The elephants poked long trunks through slits in their truck. The bears shuffled about in their cages.

And the circus was back in town.

It will be here today and Saturday. Following a performance at 4 this afternoon, there were to be shows at 8 tonight, and 10 a.m., 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday.

And then it's on to Nanaimo.

The Shrine show features 21 acts, ranging from clowns to roller skating to dancing elephants to trapeze artists to performing jungle cats.

It is a show designed with the young in mind, and Shrine officials are hoping that it will repeat its last year success.

Highlighted are the Flying Wards and the Jordans, two trapeze groups, and three animal acts involving bears, lions and elephants.

Tickets for the show are priced at $2 for reserved seats and $1.50 at the box office. Children's tickets cost 50¢.

MAKEUP TIME finds clown Chuckles Facer putting on the finishing touches before performing in the Rudy Bros. Shrine Circus today at Arena.

LITTLE MEN FROM OUTER SPACE, petrified by our unfriendly, smog-laden atmosphere? Nope, Leprechauns up above ground for a midnight caper and caught by the rising sun?

MONTE ROBERTS

At this time of the year, a great many people are faced with the problem of where to go on their vacation.

Banff? Lake Louise? Jasper? The Laurentians? Las Vegas? Denmark, Switzerland, London, Paris, Rome, Rotterdam, the Riviera, Cannes?

A great many other people (like me, who only know edge of Cannes is that sardines come in them) also have a problem about where to go on their vacation.

They do not have to decide between Monte Carlo and Mont Tremblant, for reasons known only to themselves and their banker.

But still, they have two or maybe three weeks of the boss' time to expend in not working, and it behoves them to choose the most appropriate place in which to not work.

Even I am not exempt from this seasonal decision, and I must make it soon, because sometime in July the kindly management is going to turn me out to temporary pasture, trusting I will return rested, refreshed, and of some use around the office.

I have been debating several excellent suggestions, and the one which appeals to me most at the moment was put forth by a person whom I know and trust to the utmost.

This person describes the site for my proposed vacation thusly:

"Cool, refreshing climate. Excellent accommodation. Secluded location. Private entrance, garden shaded by towering trees.

"Snack bar within walking distance, dozens of excellent restaurants less than five minutes' drive away. Plus fully equipped kitchen if you prefer to do your own cooking."

"Invigorating sea breezes almost always. For recreation, golf, swimming, water skiing, boating, fishing, bowling, snooker, cribbage, practically outside the door.

"Both lakes and sea within easy reach, breathtaking scenery. Rates more or less reasonable."

★ ★ ★

Sounds pretty attractive, doesn't it?

And I'd rather like to go there.

Except that I'm there now.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The government icebreaker, CCGS Canso, returned to her department of transport berth at Johnson Street bridge overnight after annual refit at Victoria Machinery Depot for final fitting out before summer duties in the Canadian Arctic.

She will leave about June 27 for a 10,000-mile tour of duty, clearing the way for ships taking supplies to DEW line stations across the northern extremity of Canada.

Major changes during refit were an extension forward of the funnel to house a new wire generator, and repainting in the new colors of federal government ships, scarlet hull and white superstructure.

Recently dedicated chapel at University School will be open to the public from 2 to 6 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, it was announced by headmaster J. J. Timmis.

He said the display of "so much kind interest" by the public in the chapel which was built partly by labor of and money raised by boys at the school had prompted the move.

Members of the chapel committee will show visitors around.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Which is the world's most southerly known active volcano? R.T.O.

A. Mount Erebus on Victoria Land in Antarctica.

Q. If it were possible for a man to stand on the sun, how much would he weigh there?

D.B.

A. A man weighing 150 pounds would weigh nearly two tons.

Hans Peter Lagerl, 964 Ambassador, was fined $350 and had his licence suspended in city police court this morning for impaired driving. He had pleaded guilty to the charge.

This is Mayor Harris speaking, do you have a centennial $1.00 bill?

When she replied yes, he said: "You are the first winner of our contest and entitled to $500."

She refused the offer and ran away.

He was waiting for her again at noon, and when she refused his offer of a ride a second time, he chased after her on foot.

The man is described as fairly old with grey hair, wearing a business suit.

The area was searched by police without results, and the hunt is continuing.

SHOPPING GUIDEMint Sauce for All
On This Local Lamb

By PENNY SAVER

The on-and-off weather seems to be "off" for this weekend, but you will probably be outdoors and getting more exercise anyway. Perhaps Penny's weekly food hints can keep you bursting with energy.

Store Penny was in today has a treat for lamb lovers this weekend. With every piece of lamb that you buy, you get a generous helping of home-grown mint. You can prepare your favorite mint sauce to add zest to your meal.

There are chops, of course, but for weekend roasts, why not try the shoulders at 49 cents a pound and the legs for $1 a pound.

Same store has fresh halibut at 69 cents a pound and suggests that you buy soon as the district quota has almost been caught and local halibut will not be available much longer.

Butchers also told me that we in Victoria should feel extremely lucky to be able to buy fresh red salmon at 98 cents a pound. In England it is selling at $2.70 per pound.

Local strawberries have not yet appeared in Victoria shops, but the weather seems to call for some kind of celebration. Be a little extravagant and buy strawberries Penny saw for 26 cents a box—not a bad price at this time of year. Treat yourself again with delicious New Zealand pears which have arrived just recently. Don't be fooled by their green skins; they are ripe and juicy and a delightful change after months of eating canned fruit. Price is three for 29 cents.

Call Penny at EV 2-3131 for names of stores where these items may be found.

Lemon Juice Mask Too

Q. "Do you think I exercised faithfully without results, so I gave up. After reading continually about the need for exercise, I will attempt it again. But I become discouraged. Please reply in your column."

A. Of course it depends on how much lemon juice, but as a general rule, it seems to me that lemon juice would be too drying to the skin of most women.

Q. "What is your opinion of the hormone creams?"

A. I think they help to keep one young, and all the doctors I have talked with feel that they are safe.

Q. "I am interested in the cream stick to cover up pimples. Will you please put the name of one in your column?"

A. I do not use trade names in my column. However, any time any of my readers want to know the name of some product I describe, I will be glad to send it if the reader will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with a request for it.

DEAR ABBY . . .Use Your Ingenuity, Lady!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Has a woman ever proposed to a man? I've been going with this fellow for three years. He's told everyone he knows that he wants to marry me, but he hasn't told me yet. We aren't kids, either. He is 33 and I am 31. He talks about marriage but he never comes right out and asks me to marry him. How can I get him to propose or do you think I should ask him?

WANTS TO MARRY

DEAR WANTS: Your man is a bashful one. Make it easy for him and get him on the subject again. If he talks about it long enough, he'll either ask you, or think he did.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: What do you think about a friend who has the nerve to ask you to make a dessert for her dinner party and then, at the dinner party, when everyone is telling her how delicious it is, she just says, "Thank you," and never opens her mouth about who really made it. She has done this to me more than once.

READY TO EXPLODE

DEAR READY: I think she is a small, insecure, begrudging, ungrateful fraud. Now, ask me what I think of a "friend" who would supply dessert for this kind of person twice.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: What makes women like you tick?

CURIOS MAN
DEAR CURIOUS: Men like you who get us all wound up!

* * *

DEAR ABBY: There is much controversy over the fact that where there are children a couple should stay together even though there is constant bickering and quarreling. I believe that children are better off raised in the quiet atmosphere of a peaceful home with only one parent. How do widows manage? I depend on your answer.

TROUBLED MIND

DEAR TROUBLED: Widows "manage" because of circumstances beyond their control. Divorced couples make their own misery. If married people would exercise one-half the effort toward making a peaceful and pleasant home for their children as they do in less important activities, they could eliminate the bickering and quarreling they find so impossible to live with. Amen!

The hazel-eyed war bride receives her directions from the Queen Mother's personal maid.

"But they tell me that Her Majesty generally thanks everyone personally for their help before she leaves," she added.

Mrs. Anderson met her husband, Alexander Anderson, who is from Verdun, P.Q., when he was stationed with the Black Watch in southern England in the early part of World War II. The main purpose of the Queen Mother's visit is to participate in the 100th anniversary celebrations of the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of which she is colonel-in-chief.

This is by no means the first time Mrs. Anderson has served royalty since she joined the hotel's housekeeping staff when it opened. Before being promoted to her present position she was housekeeper for the 20th floor, which included the royal suite, and was in charge of arrangements for the visits of General de Gaulle, the King of Nepal, Queen Elizabeth II, the Duke of Edinburgh and Princess Margaret, although none of them stayed as long as the Queen Mother.

"We're all looking forward to Her Majesty's visit tremendously," she says, "and although we're very much in the background will do everything we can to make her comfortable and really at home."

Champagne-Colored Gown With Pink Roses In Bouquet

A gown of champagne-toned lace overlay was chosen by Miss Pearl Jeanne Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ward, Oak Bay Towers, Newport Avenue, for her marriage to John Dean.

Tiny pearls glinted in the crown of champagne-toned leaves that held her veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and lily of the valley.

Bishop D. Rankin officiated and Mr. Ward gave his daughter in marriage.

ANTIDIANTS

Turquoise peau de soie gown and pearl-studded headress in tone were worn by matron of honor, Mrs. Pat Bell, Winnipeg. Pale yellow daisies were in her bouquet.

Best man was Theodore Cramer, Portland, Ore., and the ushers were Harry Higheen and Richard Paterson.

IN MEMORIAM

BURNETT-In memory of a beloved grandfather and pal John William (Jack) Burnett, who passed away suddenly on June 8, 1961.

Poppy meant so very much to me.

That nothing I can say.

Can't think of anything else.

Sadly missed by your loving grandson, Tommy Eddie.

BURNETT-In loving memory of John William (Jack) Burnett, who passed away suddenly while fishing in Saanich Inlet on June 8, 1961.

He made no one his last farewell.

He said goodbye to none.

The heavenly gates were opened.

A loving voice said "Come."

The things we used to say.

I wonder why you had to die.

Without a chance to say goodbye.

Though out of sight, you're ever in my heart.

You will live with me in memory.

Until the end of time.

Sadly missed by his loving wife, Marie.

Shell Used in '57 NDP Informs Wyatt

H. A. L. Fanthorpe, New Democratic Party candidate for Victoria in the June 18 federal election, today accused the city council of perpetrating an affront to the democratic principle of a free country in refusing to allow his party to hold a rally at the Cameron band shell in Beacon Hill Park.

"I believe that Ald. Toome has taken a stand which the majority of citizens will applaud, regardless of political beliefs."

Ald. A. W. Toome supported the NDP request for the band shell in the parks committee meeting Wednesday that denied it, saying "are we going to legislate free speech in this committee?"

"When Mr. Wyatt said he looked through his file and found no correspondence on the previous rally, perhaps that letter went the same way as the first letter this time requesting use of the pavilion."

NDP officials say their application to use the shell was held up because city officials claimed they never got the first letter making the request.

"I have spoken with the mayor on this subject," said Mr. Fanthorpe, "and have asked him to investigate the situation."

"We do not expect to drop this until all the facts have come to light."

The reason we wanted to U.S. Smoking Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The federal government Thursday ordered the establishment of an advisory committee to study the impact of smoking on health and "make whatever recommendations may be appropriate."

THE LIBERAL Challenge

*"This is my hope;
This is my faith..."*

L. B. Pearson

"Government can, and government must, supply the policies and climate in which progress can be made. It can manage the nation's business in a way that will get our economy moving . . . that will provide worthwhile jobs and good opportunities for all Canadians."

"But we will fail if we don't have more than just material progress . . . To achieve working democracy calls for effort and sacrifice by all citizens."

"The Liberal Party is dedicated to the proposition that it can do more than has been done in the past five years in building Canada to be great in national purpose."

"I am not in this job for the power and the glory . . . I am in politics because I sincerely believe in the Liberal party's policies and hopes."

"I have been in public service for many years. I have trained myself for the position I seek, and which I believe sincerely and humbly I can discharge."

"I ask for your support."

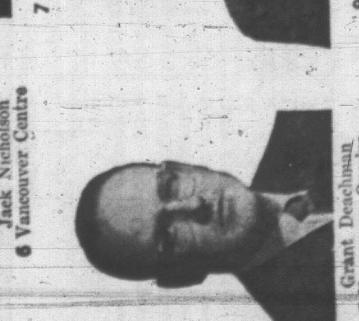

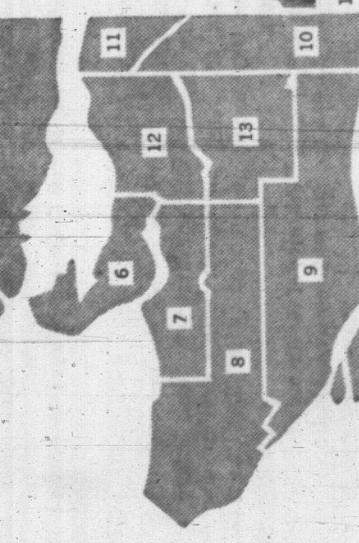

From an address to the people of British Columbia, in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Vancouver, May 12, 1962.

485,000 PERSONAL TRAGEDIES Unemployment is No. 1 Obstacle to Canada's National Progress

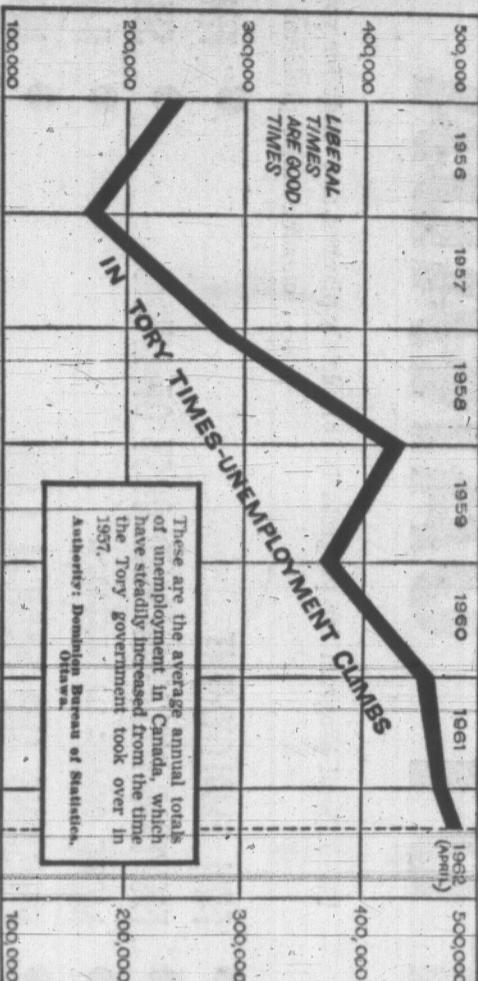

By JAMES BYRNE

No one expects that the stark hunger and desperate privation of the "dirty thirties" can ever recur in Canada. The "Bennett Buggies" and soup kitchens of that great unemployment crisis in the previous Tory regime were symptoms of a social disease for which partial remedies, such as unemployment insurance have been developed. But no matter how the effects of unemployment are cushioned, it is still a hopeless and tragic thing for any individual to be unable to work, or to find work, and forced to eke out existence on a pittance.

The expense of looking after the unemployed, and the loss of their wages and purchasing power, depresses the whole community and is a drain on the pocketbook of everyone who works.

The first thing on the agenda of the Liberal Government, on its return to service, is to wipe out the present disgracefully high rate of unemployment... bring it quickly back to the low level which has been achieved in the traditional Liberal "Good Times" of 1956, before the Tories took over. Under the current regime in Ottawa the barometer of unemployment has steadily climbed to record highs of as much as 719,000 in a frightening storm signal of another Tory depression. Before everything else, the new Liberal government will devote its energies and carefully planned policies to reversing this trend. It may take a little time, but it is Mr. Pearson's major campaign pledge that it can and will be done.

Full Speed Ahead on the Columbia

by Jack Davis, Liberal Candidate for Coast-Capilano—Engineer, Economist and director of Research and Planning for the B.C. Hydro Authority

In this situation the Liberal Party stands out as the only party capable of bringing order out of chaos. We know that, within a year of taking office, we can get construction going on the Columbia on the best terms possible for Canada and B.C.

Re-examination Necessary

There is considerable evidence to indicate that Canadian interests were not adequately protected by the Ottawa and Victoria negotiators.

General McNaughton has stated bluntly that Canada has been "sold down the river," to a rigid construction ment is justified. Parliament must review the terms of the Columbia treaty and, where necessary, reach a clear cut understanding with the United States.

2.—Our right to divert either the Columbia or its tributaries within Canada on expiry of the treaty term must be clearly understood. And—

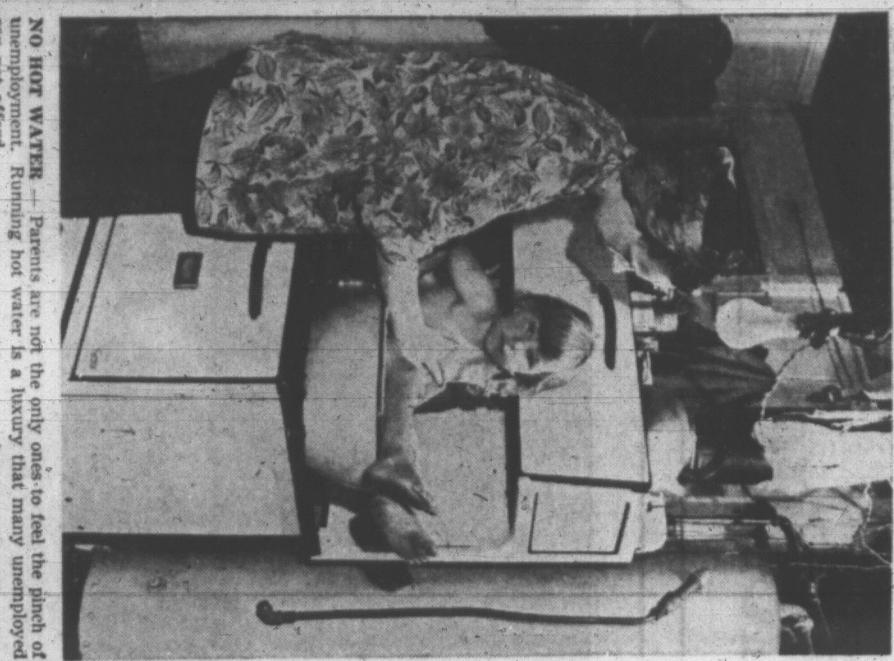

It is important to remember that we can proceed with the Columbia only if there is an end to inter-governmental wrangling. There must be the closest co-operation between Ottawa and Victoria, between Ottawa and Washington. This kind of co-operation is possible under a Liberal government. If a Liberal government is elected June 18 the Columbia River Project will receive primary start on construction.

Features of the Treaty that require a second look are:

1—The Treaty ties Canada

3—Before the Treaty is ratified there must be a Liberal government. If a Liberal government is elected

World Leaders Hope Victory For Pearson

By Elmore Philpott

To see ourselves as others see us would be a shock these days to most Canadians. The fund of International friendship which was built so high, and contributed to the climate of international co-operation that was one of our great national assets in Liberal times has been almost entirely discredited under the Tory regime.

According to the "Sunday Times" of London we have, for the first time, simultaneously antagonized both our closest friends, Britain and the United States. John Bull is rightly angered at our obstinate and shortsighted obstruction to Britain's entry into the European Common Market. Our points of friction with Uncle Sam are becoming steadily more serious. We self-righteously demand one of our best and most prosperous customers, South Africa, from the British Commonwealth; we have brusquely cold-shouldered overtures for co-operation with our Latin-American neighbours in the Organization of American States; and we have unofficially but ruthlessly raised trade barriers against B.C.'s good customer, Japan.

With some notable exceptions behind the Red Curtain, we seem to have successfully alienated an impressive number of our former good friends, and all to no purpose.

The stagnation of our domestic economy at home, compared with the soaring prosperity of other free nations, and the drastic devaluation of our

by Hon. Paul Martin

Establishment of a contributory pension plan will receive top priority from Canada's new Liberal government. It represents a totally new approach to meeting the requirements of Canada's elder citizens in a changing society. It will not be a handout. It will be financially self-supporting, geared to the growth in our economy, and will not require any addition to taxes.

The size of the pensions will rise year by year, as people retire after contributing to the new plan. Full pension rates—equal to a third of the retired person's earnings when he or she was working—will be reached in ten years.

$15 A MONTH BASIC To help those already retired who will have no opportunity to make contributions under the Liberal plan, a minimum supplementary pension fund will be established.

It will raise the basic pension to $75 a month for single people ($140 a month for married people) almost immediately. Participants will be able to choose between taking a pension at age 65 or waiting and taking a larger pension at 70. Those who are disabled or unable to work will be able to retire before 65. If a contributor dies the widow or orphans will receive the benefits.

PORTABLE PENSIONS

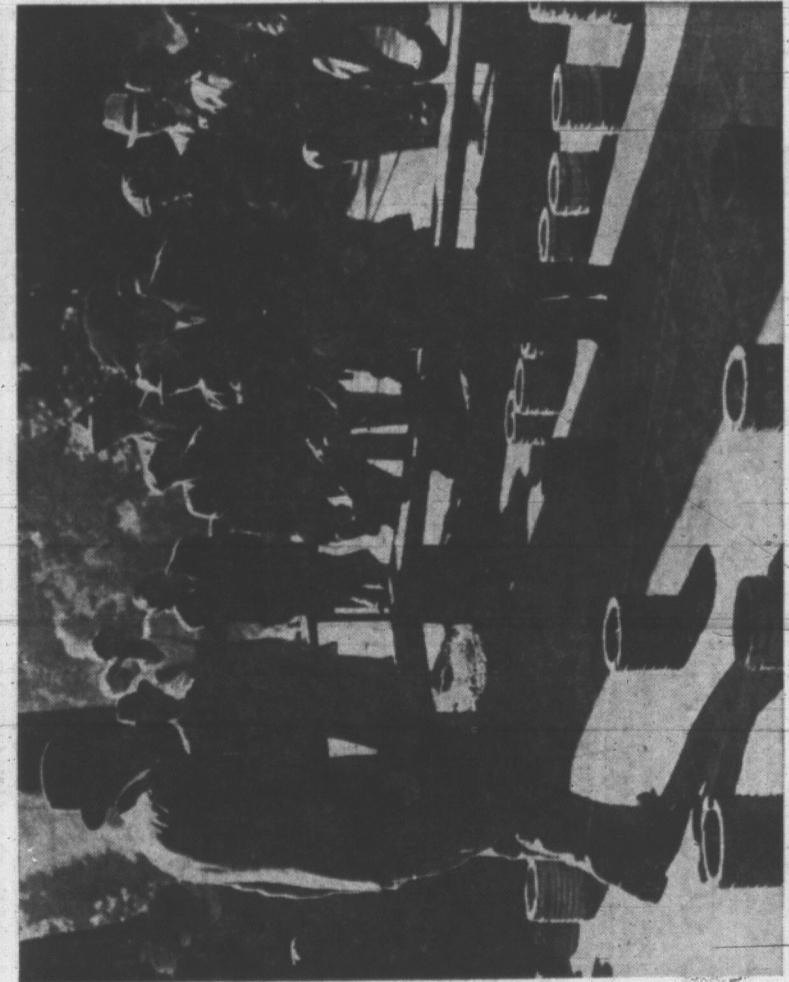

Under the Liberal plan, pensions will be fully portable. All working Canadians, both employees and self-employed, will be eligible. Contributions will start at one-half of one per cent of earnings from the employee, and the same amount from the employer. No one will lose pension rights he has built up under existing schemes.

OLD-AGE ASSISTANCE

Old-age assistance payments, available in cases of need, will be increased by the Liberals. In cooperation with the provinces, a monthly pension of $75 will be available for people between the ages of 65 and 70. But many companies which retire men at 65 require women at 60. Under the Liberal program, old-age assistance will be made available at age 60 to unmarried women and widows.

COMMONWEALTH FRICION — Prime Minister Macmillan, of the United Kingdom, scarcely conceals his concern on historic visit to Ottawa, when Mr. Diefenbaker cold-shouldered suggestion for closer Commonwealth ties and mutual tariff concessions.

THE CROWNING TOUCH-DEVALUATION

While the Tories are boasting about the impetus that devaluation will give the sales of Canadian products abroad—at cheaper prices, of course—they forget to mention two facts:

1. Any increase in trade resulting from the excessive devaluation of the Canadian dollar will be financed out of the pocket of Canada's working men and women through lessened purchasing power for their pay checks.
2. Excessive devaluation so under-prices some Canadian exports that报复 tariffs may result. (For example, U.S. Secretary of State Rusk has ordered an investigation into B.C. lumber's domination of the U.S. Atlantic seaboard market at the request of U.S. lumbermen).

TRADE WITH BRITAIN—SHAMEFUL NEGLECT

Trade, both imports and exports, between Canada and Britain declined substantially during the Tory years despite Diefenbaker's promise to switch 15 per cent of Canada's trade from the U.S. to Britain. Worse still, the Tories added insult to injury. Three times the British asked Canada to consider a freer trade arrangement. Three times the Tories off-handedly rejected the offer.

The British offer should have been received in the sincere manner it was made. It should have been used as the basis for a down-to-hard-facts discussion on Canadian-U.K. trade problems and not as an excuse to embarrass Britain in its talks with the Common Market.

Similarly U.S. President Kennedy's invitation to talk free trade should have been accepted. Under a constructive Liberal leadership Canada would invite Britain, the Commonwealth countries, the U.S., European Common Market nations, Japan, and any others who may be interested, to join in progressively reducing the barriers to world trade. (Such changes will bring dislocations to some Canadian industries, but the Liberals are prepared to cope with this. Adjustment grants will be made to industries affected by changing trade patterns, to enable them to firmly re-establish their economic practicality).

A child crippled for life by polio and accident or illness.

These things happen every day to hundreds of Canadian families and each in a different way is the start of a drain on family financial resources that can cripple a family's security for years. Whole families get along with less than they should as each member skimpes and saves a penny to help foot the bill for sister's, brother's, mother's or father's unforeseen illness.

THESE are the reasons why the Liberal Party has adopted Canada's strongest platform for a comprehensive medical care plan!

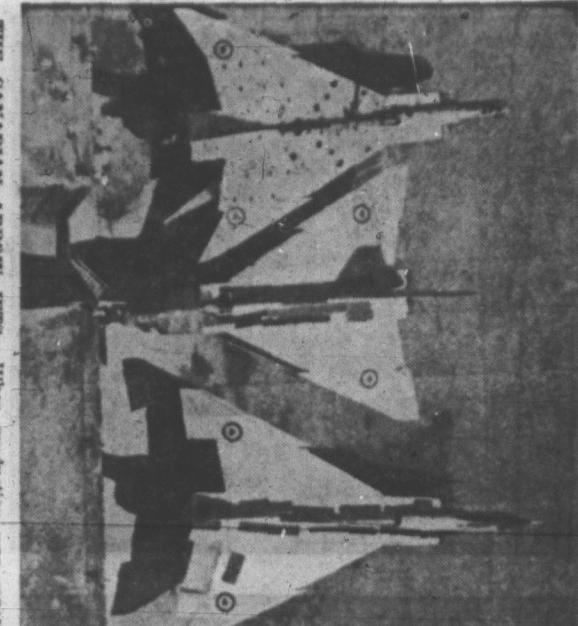

Today, more than ever before, the cost of protecting the health of a family can become an unnecessarily tragic burden. A Liberal government will dedicate itself to solving this problem.

In several Canadian provinces and in a number of other nations, partial or complete medical care plans already in existence have been studied and under a Liberal government Canada's plan will be prepared and implemented in such a way as to avoid the errors and pit falls inherent in most of the pioneer plans, including cost to the nation.

National Defence

BILLIONS OF DOLLARS DOWN THE DRAIN

by Hon. Paul T. Hellyer, former Associate Minister of Defence

THE CANADIAN ARROW JETS — When production was cancelled

13,500 Canadians were thrown out of work. It was later estimated that a total of 50,000 workers and 650 Canadian industries were seriously affected.

We move to 1962 and find that those same Tory defence experts have now equipped the RCAF with the American-made Voodoo, a 1952 aircraft that went out of production in 1961. It performs essentially the same job for which the scrapped Canadian Arrow was successfully designed and produced.

American manufacturers and workers get the profits, and Canadian airmen are deprived of their special needs.

But let's get back to the Tory ideas on speed.

The government recently ordered the construction of eight destroyer escorts for the Canadian Navy.

Their primary purpose, says the government, will be to destroy enemy submarines. Unfortunately they can't travel as fast on the surface as the new Soviet submarines can travel under water. Maybe it's better that they can't catch them, because naval experts agree that they will be obsolete before they are completed and will stand little chance against an enemy of superior speed and more modern design.

This same pattern of confusion, colossal waste and cabinet indecision runs through the Conservative government's nuclear policy—if indeed it can be referred to as "policy." External Affairs Minister

Green suggests any suggestion of equipping our forces with nuclear weapons, but Defense Minister

Harkness (the one-man U.S. export market) buys

American-made Bomarc missiles designed for nuclear warheads and useless without them. More millions wasted, more jobs created by the Tories in Seattle while half a million Canadians are out of work.

If our defence expenditures were of a minor nature—or if they provided us with any measure of real protection—then perhaps the Tory extravagances might be forgiven. But this terrible drain on our national resources, which has failed to provide our fighting men with adequate tools for their job, is contributing to the ruin on our dollar and piling up a bill that future generations will be hard-pit to pay.

COOK GETS SKIPPER 'ROARING DRUNK'

13 East Germans Flee in Stolen River Boat

CP From AP-Reuters

BERLIN — Bringing a baby with them, 13 young East Germans—six of them crew members—seized a 386-ton river excursion boat after getting the captain and engineer "roaring drunk" and escaped to freedom early today under a hail of machine-gun bullets.

The refugees told police the captain and engineer, both "old Communists", were locked by the six crew members in a cabin after they became heavily intoxicated during a party that was part of a well-laid plan.

Two of the crew then steered the boat upriver.

East German police, firing from a watch tower, a pier, a bridge and a patrol boat, pumped more than 200 bullets into the fleeing vessel. Nobody was hurt.

West Berlin police fired 10 shots back at the East UNU from a watch tower, a pier, a bridge and a patrol boat, pumping more than 200 bullets into the fleeing vessel. Nobody was hurt.

West Berlin police fired 10 shots back at the East Germans to check their fire. The boat, the Friedrich Wolf, was riddled and there were bullet marks on buildings on the West Berlin shore.

The refugees included eight men, all employees of East Berlin's white fleet of excursion boats, five women, and one couple's five-month-old boy. The adults, all about 30 or under, told police they had been planning the escape for a week.

Thursday night the men in the group went aboard the Friedrich Wolf at her mooring beside the River Spree and began drinking with her captain and engineer at an all-night party. When the two were off guard, they jumped them and tied them up.

HAIL OF BULLETS

13 East Germans Flee in Stolen River Boat

Under cover of darkness they spirited their women and the baby aboard. Then at dawn the men got the two-decker boat moving.

They swung into the Spree and headed toward the centre of Berlin, making for the point where the left bank of the river becomes the border between East and West Berlin.

Posts of Vopos—as the East German police are called—opened fire.

A Vopo on a pier in mid-stream fired with a tommy-gun.

Vopos on the Oberbaum Bridge, some 300 yards away, were allowed to get the boat under way and return to East Berlin.

Police disclosed the group made a similar unsuccessful attempt to escape a week ago. They sailed one of the excursion boats down the spree, but at the moment they should have turned into the canal, their passage was blocked by a passing barge. So they had to turn around and go back to East Berlin.

The presence of a white excursion boat on the Spree would not excite the Vopos as long as it stayed well away from the

RED HOT PRICE ISSUE

Dollar Duel Waged By Dief, Pearson

PM Hints Of Action

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

QUEBEC CITY — Prime Minister Diefenbaker had been making and receiving mysterious long distance telephone calls Thursday morning before, suddenly, at a luncheon speech he hinted at taking action against those who are using dollar devaluation as a reason for price increases.

It is understood the calls related to the increases in prices of bread and gasoline in Western Canada.

This has caused the Conservative party concern because Liberal leader Pearson has been forecasting the cost of living would be forced up by the government's devaluation plan.

NO ONE NAMED

Mr. Diefenbaker did not name the "greedy" people who pretend that because of the dollar policy they must raise prices.

Nor did he specify what action might be taken when he interjected the remarks into his speech at Magog, a textile town of 8,000.

"I simply say to those who are trying to take advantage of this situation by boosting their prices that there will be action taken of a definite nature in order to prevent that kind of thing happening."

NOTICE SERVED

"At the moment, my colleagues and I are considering this problem. I don't want any group or corporation in this country, no matter how powerful they may be, to take advantage of this situation."

"I serve notice here and now that in the next few days, if this kind of thing is going on, there will be action taken as effective as it will be drastic," he declared.

Mr. Diefenbaker's threat of action was strikingly similar to the declaration of war by President Kennedy against the steel manufacturers in the United States who had sought an increase in the price of steel. The president immediately announced there would be a thorough inquiry by the federal government. Washington. The steel makers backed down and withdrew their price increases.

NOTHING DEFINITE

The prime minister made no effort at his Magog meeting nor later at his Quebec City meeting to spell out just what action he would take.

It was possible but unlikely that he might take action through controls. He has already in this campaign hit at Quebec Liberal candidate Maurice Lamontagne for being an economist whom he claimed favored controls. That, the prime minister has scoffed, is a form of socialism.

COMBINE PROBER ASKED ABOUT JUMP IN PRICES

OTTAWA (CP)—D. H. W. Henry, in charge of combines investigations in Canada, said today that Justice Minister Fulton has been discussing with him the question of recent price rises in the light of the Combines Investigation Act.

The minister, now campaigning in British Columbia, held several conversations with him by telephone Thursday in which the possible application of the Combines Investigation Act was discussed.

The conversations involved the rise in prices of several products during recent weeks which had been attributed by some persons to the devaluation of the Canadian dollar to 92½ cents in terms of United States currency.

IMPERIAL HOLDS LINE

Rollback Seen On Gas Boost

In a surprise announcement Thursday afternoon, Imperial Oil Ltd. announced that it would not follow the path taken earlier this week by three oil companies in boosting gasoline prices.

Despite the fact that the Imperial announcement cut the ground from under them, British American Oil Co., Texaco Canada Ltd. and Royalite Oil Co. had no further word on their price increases of seven-tenths of a cent per gallon which were still in effect this morning.

However, it is generally conceded that competitive pressures normally would force all prices back down to the level set by Imperial.

The bodies of Mrs. Hilda Dillon, 37, her husband William, 52, and their children Debbie, 8; Linda, 4; and Dennis, 3, were found in their suburban home Thursday morning.

Coroner R. A. y m o n d Brandt said the two youngest were smothered and the others died of bullet wounds. The children were in their beds in their pyjamas. The husband was on the floor in the hall, a .38-calibre revolver under her.

Dillon's sister-in-law, Mrs. Dorothy Dillon of nearby La Mirada, said she stayed with the three children while Mrs. Dillon went to the psychiatrist Wednesday night.

'Controls' Questioned

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

WINDSOR — Liberal leader Lester Pearson Thursday challenged the Diefenbaker government to say whether it planned price, wage and profit controls in the wake of devaluation.

Through a series of questions raised in a speech at an election rally here, Mr. Pearson suggested such controls may be in the offing.

The basis of his questions, he said, was a statement reportedly made earlier in the day by Prime Minister Diefenbaker to the effect that "drastic action" may be taken against those who raise prices because of devaluation.

"What does this mean?" demanded Mr. Pearson. "Is the prime minister proposing price controls?

IS IT PANIC?

Is that what has happened to a government which has talked so much about free enterprise and accused us of being socialist?

"Has the licence should be granted to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"The majority of the Board of Broadcast Governors on grounds which we are wholly unable to accept, is of the opposite opinion.

"We feel, therefore, that we have no choice but to offer our resignations from that board."

Dr. Forsey said his resignation was in protest against the board's action in failing to issue a licence for a television station in Quebec City.

The resignations were made in a joint letter to Revenue Minister Nowlan, Dr. Forsey said.

"In our opinion, the time has come when a decision on the Quebec Television application can no longer be postponed," Dr. Forsey said, quoting from the letter.

"The licence should be granted to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"The majority of the Board of Broadcast Governors on grounds which we are wholly unable to accept, is of the opposite opinion.

"We feel, therefore, that we have no choice but to offer our resignations from that board."

Dr. Forsey is research director for the Canadian Labor Congress and Professor Hudon is dean of law at Laval University, Quebec City.

"Imperial Oil has no present intention of making an increase in the price of gasoline through its service stations."

FLUCTUATIONS

Some price fluctuations could be expected in price war areas, the company said.

In addition, there will be some price increases to industrial and government customers who buy in large quantities at reduced prices. The increases here will be about 3 cents a gallon while in Ontario the increase will be about 8 cents.

Imperial, which triggered the gasoline price increases by posting higher prices for crude oil in western Canada oil fields after devaluation of the Canadian dollar early last month, said competition did not allow for general retail product price increases.

He sent an ultimatum to Club President Ernest C. MacDonald:

"Cancel it or else."

The "or else" was that the Newfoundland government would withdraw sponsorship of a regional Rotary Club convention dinner here next week. Not only that, the premier would have nothing to do with the club in future.

Mr. MacDonald whispered to Mr. Fleming, Mr. MacDonald arose to say that the finance minister had "kindly consented" to accept the club's withdrawal of its invitation to speak. The guests — and Mr. Fleming — ate their luncheon and dispersed.

No-one at the luncheon had anything to say at the time.

There was plenty of comment later, in far-off places.

QUEBEC CITY — Prime Minister Diefenbaker had been making and receiving mysterious long distance telephone calls Thursday morning before suddenly, at a luncheon speech he hinted at taking action against those who are using dollar devaluation as a reason for price increases.

It is understood the calls related to the increases in prices of bread and gasoline in Western Canada.

They could give no other details except to say that an ambulance had been dispatched to the scene to pick up three bodies.

NFL Signed Up

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC announced today that National Football League games will again be telecast on its national network beginning in mid-September.

The package deal with its co-sponsors, Carling Breweries Ltd. and American Motors (Canada) Ltd., will include the NFL championship game.

A-Test In Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States fired another shot today in the series of nuclear tests in the atmosphere above the Pacific.

The blast, described as in the intermediate-yield range which covers the explosive equivalent of from 20,000 to 1,000,000 tons of TNT, was set off near Christmas Island about 1 p.m., EDT, the Atomic Energy Commission and the defense department announced.

All-Star Hockey

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League's all-star game, ushering in the 1962-63 season, will be played in Toronto Oct. 6, league president Clarence Campbell said today.

The annual game brings together the Stanley Cup winner, in the winner's home city, and the all-stars selected for the previous season.

SMALLWOOD BLOCKS FINANCE CHIEF'S DOLLAR SPEECH

Joey Said No, ... and Donald Did Go

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The finance minister was willing. The premier said no. The club president said "you'd better not." So the finance minister didn't.

It all boiled up today into as uproarious a row as the federal election campaign has seen so far.

The not-so-long-range duel between Finance Minister Fleming and Newfoundland's Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood—they were only rooms apart in the Newfoundland Hotel—developed Thursday when Mr. Flem-

The conversations involved the rise in prices of several products during recent weeks which had been attributed by some persons to the devaluation of the Canadian dollar to 92 1/4 cents in terms of United States currency.

Despite the fact that the Imperial announcement cut the ground from under them, British American Oil Co., Texaco

Canada Ltd. and Royalite Oil Co. had no further word on their price increases of seven-tenths of a cent per gallon which were still in effect this morning.

However, it is generally conceded that competitive pressures normally would force all prices back down to the level set by Imperial.

In a statement issued Thursday afternoon, Canada's largest oil company said:

compelled to devalue the dollar, after using up $300 million of the exchange reserves trying to avoid devaluation.

"The prime minister says it was just a little bookkeeping," scoffed Mr. Pearson. "Some bookkeeping."

Then, he said, government spokesmen tried to deny "the plain fact that their own statistics revealed last week, statistics which showed that even despite devaluation we've been dependent on some mysterious outside support to keep the exchange fund stable."

"The government doesn't deny this," said Mr. Pearson, "though they seem unclear as to the source of the outside support."

The prime minister denied the suggestion made by Mr. Pearson earlier this week that central banks of foreign countries had advanced help to the fund. (Wednesday, Mr. Pearson accepted this denial but still claimed there had been some outside support.)

STORIES DIFFER

The government was further off base, Mr. Pearson said, in its comments on price increases that might result from devaluation. Finance Minister Fleming said — it wouldn't have any ill effect, that prices wouldn't get a appreciably higher.

But then Trade Minister George Hees had a different story. He said price increases wouldn't matter to ordinary men and women because they'd just be increases on luxuries, Mr. Pearson said.

"The Tories seem to have a peculiar idea of what are luxuries for the Canadian people."

JOEY

Smallwood had prevented Mr. Fleming from speaking.

National officials of the Rotary Club could not be reached for comment.

At a rally after the luncheon, the finance minister himself said the Canadian Bill of Rights does not mean freedom of speech only with the "license and permission" of Mr. Smallwood.

Mr. Fleming was in St. John's on a two-day political visit. He had been invited to address the Rotary Club.

A few minutes after the luncheon got under way word came from the premier that he wished to see club officials in a nearby room. They hurried out while Mr. Fleming sat silent at the head table.

Mr. MacDonald returned to say that the premier regarded Mr. Fleming's proposed speech as political and he'd better not make it.

Mr. Fleming said at a press conference later that he had offered to stand up and make the withdrawal of the club's invitation to speak himself but that Mr. Smallwood had said that if he even got to his feet, the government's dinner would be cancelled.

PAY NO ATTENTION

The colorful premier, to address the Rotary Club convention here June 13 also had his say later. The gist of it was: "Pay no attention to Mr. Fleming down here trying to grab a few votes. He's on the way out."

The Canadian dollar, pegged May 3 at 92.5 cents in relation to the U.S. dollar, is the hottest political issue in Canada, the premier said, and the invitation to Mr. Fleming, who had done the pegging, to discuss it made the Rotary Club a partisan body.

Mr. Fleming had the last word of the day. At an evening political rally, he said:

"You are going to have a visit from Mr. Castro up here trying to learn something about the tactics of a dictatorship."

U.S. Jet Shatters World Flight Mark

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Strategic Air Command B-52H Stratofortress jet completed an 11,400-mile "closed circuit" flight without refueling Thursday to establish two world distance records.

The huge eight-jet bomber spent 22 hours and 38 minutes criss-crossing the North American continent before touching down here.

It travelled farther than any other aircraft without refueling for a world distance record over a circuitous route.

PEARSON

"Is bread a luxury? Are thousands and thousands of kinds of equipment, whose costs enter into the price of manufacturing Canadian products?"

Mr. Pearson said he had no way of knowing whether the prime minister had price controls on his mind; in fact he had no way of knowing whether Mr. Diefenbaker had anything on his mind.

But his "vague comments about drastic action," said Mr. Pearson, were reason enough to ask the prime minister exactly what he did have in mind.

Thursday was a suphy and agreeable day for the Liberal leader, politically as well as weather-wise, in his tour of southwestern Ontario.

At Sarnia he told 200 at the businessmen's breakfast that a Liberal government would end deficit financing within two years of its election.

CLEAN UP MESS'

"Our first task would be to clean up the mess and to restore confidence in the dollar," he said. "But we don't mind a deficit for one year, or two years — no more than two years — if it is used to expand the economy so we can turn deficits into surpluses."

Mr. Pearson, at places like Petrolia, Dresden and Chatham, kept sounding a victory theme, claiming with firm confidence that on June 18 his party would win the election.

"From coast to coast I feel that the pulse of Liberalism is strong and vibrant again," he said.

BLACK AND ROSE*I Didn't Mean To Slipped

ROME (AP) — Bosomy Jayne Mansfield twisted down to her lace brassiere — no striptease, just an accident, she said — in a night of Roman partying that ended early today.

"Striptease by La Mansfield," headlined Rome's Il Messaggero.

"Not true," said Jayne, "it was no striptease. I just happened to be wearing a very loose fitting dress. Occasionally it came apart."

Jayne wore a low-cut polka dot cocktail dress Thursday night as she and her husband, Mickey Hargilley, first went to a movie studio party, then to a Rome night club.

At both places the blonde actress, here making a movie called Panic Button — created a small panic. She twisted. And as she twisted, her dress slipped off her shoulders leaving only a black and rose lace bra above the waist.

It happened at both the party and the night club. "I tried to hold my dress together," Jayne said. "I guess twisting wasn't the best thing to do in that dress."

ning. By motorcade the party moved off for a tour of the eastern townships, including Windsor Mills, East Angus and Sherbrooke.

Mr. Diefenbaker flew by CPA chartered plane to Montreal at 3 o'clock where the prime minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker donned suitable attire to meet Her Majesty the Queen Mother when she arrived by TCA at Dorval Airport in Montreal. That agreeable task completed, Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker resumed their electioneering with a flight to Quebec City for his night rally. There the prime minister belabored the Liberals for endeavoring to prevent the Conservative speakers from presenting their party's views.

Mr. Diefenbaker lashed out at Premier Joey Smallwood of Newfoundland. He said that the president of the St. John's Rotary Club withdrew an invitation to Finance Minister Fleming to address its luncheon meeting Thursday because of an "ultimatum" from the premier. The prime minister claimed that Mr. Fleming was only going to deal in "general terms" with the financial situation in Canada.

This he said was further evidence that the Liberals were domineering when in office. They had applied similar tactics to debates in Parliament in 1956. "They are the same old bunch," he snorted. Competition from Imperial stations, they conceded, would force them to lower their prices. And if they didn't get relief from a cutback on wholesale prices soon, they would be in a badly squeezed profit position.
